and Carmel Valley Outlook

OUR 68TH YEAR, NO. 9 — FEBRUARY 25, 1982

ADAM BERNSTEIN shifts gears as he races off to a make-believe fire.

WHAT EVERY little red school house needs is a little red fire truck. Carmel Bay School welcomed a 1930 Mack Fire Truck Friday, Feb. 19, which was a gift from the city. The school will refurbish the truck and make it "kid proof." The truck was towed from its former parking space in the Builder's Supply lot, Junipero and Fourth, by Dougherty's Auto-Body Shop to its new home. That company will also give the truck a free paint job.

General plan revision costs to rise

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE CARMEL City Council will consider March 2 whether it wants to add $14,000 in expenses and 10 months in additional time to revise the general plan.

The council reviewed proposed modifications in the contract with Earth Metrics — the Burlingame consultant hired to update the 1973 general plan — but continued the matter until Tuesday.

Two members of the Carmel Planning Commission and the General Plan Committee (formerly known as the General Plan Advisory Committee) were asked to provide the council with their suggestions on the proposed contract revision before the council acts.

Planning commissioners James Wright and John Logan, members of the General Plan Steering Committee, will review the proposed changes in the contract.

The original contract with Earth Metrics was for $58,250 for revision of the general plan and for work on the Carmel Local Coastal Program. The revisions proposed by City Atty. George Brehmer would increase the total cost of the contract to $72,550.

Adoption of the final, revised general plan was scheduled for June 28 under the original agreement, but the proposed contract modifications would extend that deadline to April 14, 1983 — a 10-month extension.

During those 10 months, Earth Metrics would work with the General Plan Committee to hold 19 meetings beginning March 4, to consider each element of the general plan.

City Administrator Doug Peterson said one effect of the proposed modifications would be to "elevate the deliberations of the General Plan Committee to the status of a general plan subcommittee to the planning commission."

The seven-member citizen panel was recently given the authority to vote on general plan issues and to elect a chairperson, after some members said they felt frustrated at lack of progress in their task.

The city council directed revision of the contract with the consultant after a stormy town hall meeting in November which included council, planning commission, and committee members. Earth Metrics came under fire for its alleged lack of sensitivity to the character of Carmel and for not providing the committee with enough direction.

Since then, the committee has set regular meeting dates for the first and third Thursdays of each month and has started to review in detail the 1973 general plan. But its work has been hampered somewhat by the loss of two members — the death of Les Gross and resignation of John Eatherton.

THE COUNCIL appointed Alan Williams and Gene Hammond to fill the two vacancies on the committee at its Feb. 24 meeting.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold objected to the proposed $14,300 increase in contract costs, and said there is no need for Earth Metrics to have a $33-per-hour environmental planner in attendance at committee meetings.

"We could cut these costs in half," Mrs. Arnold said. "There's no reason for them to

Applauds C.V. burgers

Dear Editor:

The hamburger, ever popular with people of all ages, can soar to great heights or sink to the level of the British Wimpyburger. I live in Westchester County, N.Y., well-populated and adjacent to New York City. Last year, the newspaper chain serving the various communities in that county conducted a contest for the best hamburger. Voting was heavy and loyally opinionated. After the winner was announced I tried one, found it to be a worthy effort and was satisfied.

During my two-month stay on the Monterey Peninsula I had hamburgers in various restaurants and last week I found one that surpasses the Westchester County champion! It was a good size, broiled as ordered, with the bun perfectly toasted and a moderate amount of sauce made with mayonnaise and mustard. Lying on the plate was a piece of lettuce, slices of tomato, pickle and red onion, to build a masterpiece as one wished. The meat was tasty and juicy. There was a choice of french fried potatoes or the use of an excellent salad bar. The price was moderate.

The home of this new champion is the Moongypsy Cafe, 1 Carmel Village Center, Carmel Valley Village. The decor is plain but pleasant, tables well-spaced, service efficient and friendly.

So now I am returning home with my memories of Big Sur, 17-Mile Drive, Carmel, Monterey, Salinas and the friendly inhabitants, but especially the new champion hamburger at the Moongypsy Cafe in a quiet village without traffic lights and parking meters.

Straightening the facts

Dear Editor:

This is in response to Mr. Gene Hammond's letter to the editor in the Feb. 18 edition of the Pine Cone.

As both a former Mayor and Planning Commissioner, Mr. Hammond should certainly be aware that only the City Council passes or changes items in the Carmel Municipal Code — never City staff.

The subject bakery is located in the C-1-C zoning district, and had in fact been denied a use permit for a delicatessen operation by the Board of Adjustments.

The bakery owners then submitted an application to modify the business use to include a grocery operation, which is a permitted use in the C-1-C zoning district. The Business License and Code Review Board cannot deny an application without cause, nor may the Board grant a business license to operate a commercial business in the R-1 zoning district. The entire Board was and is extremely uncomfortable with the situation, and the questions asked of the applicants during the meeting reflected this concern. Further, the Board pointed out a change in use to a delicatessen would not be legal. The Board did not reverse a decision of the Board of Adjustments nor does the authority to do so exist.

Mr. Hammond failed to mention that the minutes of the BL&CRB meeting on Feb. 4, 1982, state in part "Griggs and Warren then asked that it be indicated for the record that they cast affirmative votes solely on the basis that a grocery store is a legal use in this zone." (A copy of these minutes is hereby attached) This hardly reflects a "whim" of the Board.

As to the "privilege of a vote," I do not have a privilege of a vote, I have a DUTY as mandated by the same Municipal Code Mr. Hammond helped to mold and maintain. I will gladly give up that duty if and when the City Council changes the Code.

Please get your facts straight, Mr. Hammond.

Fire engine finds a home

Dear Editor:

Carmel's 1930 Mack fire truck has finally found a permanent home at Carmel's Little Red Schoolhouse. It seems to be a perfect environment to house the historic fire truck.

The fire truck has been homeless and sitting at Carmel Builders Supply looking sad and neglected. In December the City Council voted to give the fire truck to Bay School. Already, Tim Dougherty, owner of Dougherty's Body Shop in Monterey, has voluteered to paint the truck as a gift to Bay School. The parents at Bay School as well as some of the alumni will be getting together a workday to build a structure to protect the fire truck from the damp weather.

As a resident of Carmel and parent at Bay School, I am delighted to see something unique from Carmel's past will be preserved, loved and enjoyed for years to come.

I would like to thank the Carmel City Council for giving the community and children of Carmel a Christmas gift that will be treasured year after year. Santa himself couldn't have done any better!

Waiting for the word

Dear Editor:

We would appreciate your assistance in publishing this open letter to our City Administrator.

Dear Mr. Peterson:

It is now the end of February. Two deadlines that you announced have long since passed.

We still have no permanent Chief of Police. We fully understand that this is a critical decision; however, why haven't you had the common courtesy to give us some idea as to what progress is being made? We certainly want you to have sufficient time to properly process the applications so that you can make the best possible selection for this department and for the citizens of Carmel.

Your silence and lack of visible activity has put an incredible strain on all of us. we are not asking that you rush into any decision, but rather that you simply keep us informed as to when a decision might be expected. It is ludicrous that we must postpone filling existing vacancies and making major purchases. It is sad that we must begin every new conversation with the phrase, "Is there any word yet?"

Fears for Bruno's

Dear Editor:

I am concerned that six people (along with their paid professional picketers) may succeed in taking away the rights of Carmel residents to have a convenient, moderate-priced grocery store at Bruno's Store.

This may be accomplished despite our wishes and those of the present owners, who are committed to the grocery business, but may be forced to turn over their long-term lease to the building to some other enterprise — such as a bank — if we, by our refusal to shop there, make it economically impossible for them to keep the store open.

I feel that these six former employees are being very selfish and unconcerned with the community's needs — especially those of the elderly who use this store but now are afraid to cross the "picket line."

If the store is forced to close, we will all suffer, but every person who has been going along with the demands of the picketers that we shop elsewhere will have to bear the ultimate responsibility. Is this the end we wish to accomplish? If not, we must remember we do have the right to shop where we wish and to do what we honestly feel right. I feel I want to protect the rights of my elderly neighbors — not the demands of six people.

Piqued by placards

Dear Editor:

No doubt the letters and rhetoric will continue over Bruno's labor dispute, and while I have some sympathy for those employees who have chosen to picket, I have to wonder at the mentality that enables people to stand around the parking lot day after day, doing nothing.

The Reverend Faria, who comes from Freedom, where he no doubt preaches brotherly love, infers that we Carmelites should feel cheated by Bruno's action; this is one Carmelite who does not, and I'm not "coming back from" anywhere.

The bottom line is this: these people will stand around until they decide they're wasting their lives away, or they will become permanent fixtures in the parking lot, so many fading human placard toters, to be avoided when parking. Alternatively, they may succeed and close down Bruno's, in which case everyone loses, except, of course, those picketers who will pick up their placards and head for home, having reduced the freedom of choice for the people of Carmel.

Urges Jeffers Room

Dear Editor:

A few years ago you published my letter suggesting that the Harrison Memorial Library establish a Robinson Jeffers Room where the great poet's works could be suitably displayed, along with appropriate memorabilia, photographs, paintings, and so forth.

Now that a library annex has been proposed and expansion plans are being considered, this is the right time to consider again such a worthy addition to the library's facilities.

The Robinson Jeffers Room I envision might be similar to the John Steinbeck Room in Salinas' main public library. It could be — should be — established in conjunction with the energetic and forward-looking Tor House Foundation. Such a project is due the residents of Carmel, the people of California, and the international community which holds Jeffers in the high esteem his extremely important writings merit.

I sincerely hope that the Robinson Jeffers Room of the Harrison Memorial Library will soon become a reality.

Sour grapes?

Dear Editor:

Carmel Valley has always been famed for the fertility of its soil. Old timers will tell of the danger of laying a shovel on the ground since the handle will root before you can pick it up. I've heard of houses being buried in spuds when somebody foolishly knocked out the side of a single hill.

All of these old tales pale when compared to the one that appeared in a local newspaper. This story states that Merv Griffin has — in less than a year — ripped up the top of a ridge, prepared the soil, planted grapes, processed the grapes, fermented the juice and bottled the wine under his private label.

God only knows what this man could contribute as Secretary of Agriculture.

The Mayor's Report

Early memories of Ansel Adams

By BARNEY LAIOLO

THERE IS NO doubt about it! The turnout for the celebration of Ansel Adams' three-score and 20th birthday was a huge success! At the Weston Gallery on Friday night the number of people gathered to wish Ansel well became so large that barricades had to be put up on Lincoln to stop traffic from entering.

I WOULD LIKE to turn the clock back a little and mention some of my early recollections of Ansel. Way back when he built his home in the Highlands, I am pleased to have been the electrical contractor employed to do the wiring. I was informed that the studio in the lower part of the building had to have top electrical equipment. There could be no drop or change in voltage greater than 1 percent. This has to be the most precisely wired studio in the whole state!

Another aside regarding Ansel deals with the delivery of freight. When he first moved to his new adobe, United Parcel did not deliver to the Highlands, nor did other freight carriers. Ansel asked me if I would receive his freight at my shop, the Village Radio-Electric, and he would pick it up promptly. We did this for approximately a year-and-a-half until the freight carriers extended their service to the Highlands.

In appreciation for this service, Ansel came in one day with one of this beautiful shots of the Grand Tetons. That photo hung in my shop until it was closed in 1978, at which time the business was moved to Carmel Rancho.

It was indeed an honor and my pleasure to have been a part of Ansel's life. Happy Birthday and more!

THE PROGRAM of installing smoke alarms in the homes of our residents is a combined effort by our local service clubs (Rotary, Lyons and Kiwanis) and is well on its way. The monies have been put in a special account and the first allottment of units has arrived.

These smoke alarms will be installed by volunteer members of the same clubs as well as volunteer firemen from our town.

The Carmel Foundation is handling all the calls and appointments for installation of the units. All inquiries should be directed to the Foundation at 624-1588.

For those who cannot afford to pay, their unit will be installed on a "no charge" basis. However, if others feel they want to contribute toward the cost, their money will go toward the purchase of more units and the upkeep of those installed.

The Sunbeam Company is to be congratulated for furnishing these smoke alarms to this volunteer operation at a very special price.

Thanks go to Councilman Howard Brunn and to former Mayor Andy Anderson, Greg Celleti, Fire Chief Bob Updike and all the others involved in this very fine project.

It is hoped that in the very near future all homes will be equipped with smoke alarms which will benefit and protect all of us.

Smiling Barney

P.S. Coming together is a beginning; staying together is progress; working together is success.

Student host families sought in Carmel

THE CARMEL CHAPTER of the American Field Service (AFS) has launched a search that will offer families the opportunity to meet the world face to face.

Under the AFS program, foreign students are hosted by families for the school year while attending classes at Carmel High School.

"The American Field Service program is extremely rewarding to the host family as well as beneficial to the student," says Lucetta Merrill, home selection chairperson of the local chapter, "Familes learn and grow together by acquiring new perspectives about another culture."

Mrs. Merrill said host families pay food costs and incidental expenses for the foreign student. A $50 monthly tax credit for host families is authorized by the IRS, she added.

The AFS provides foreign students with medical coverage and a monthly allowance, said Mrs. Merrill. Although many host families have children in high school, couples with younger children or no children are encouraged to apply.

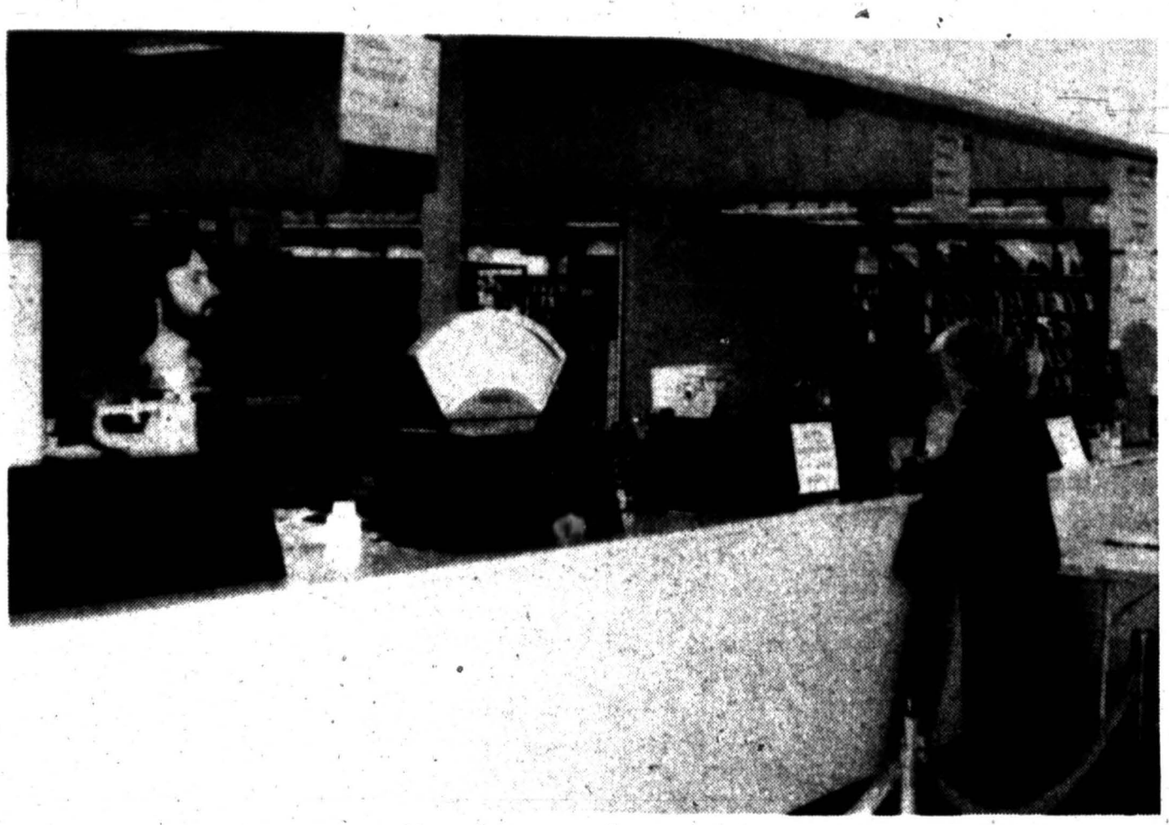
The foreign students are screened by their home country and the AFS office in New York City, she said.

There are two foreign students staying in Carmel: Phillipe Masquelier of Belgium, living with the David Banks family; and Hendrik Balters of Switzerland, living with the Peter Salmonsen family.

Alan Siegrist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Siegrist of Carmel, will leave in March for a year-long stay in Toyama, Japan. His sister, Gretchen, had spent a year in Tunisia as an AFS student.

There are three Carmel students waiting for placement: Amery Burleigh, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William Burleigh; David Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Keith; and James Tarantino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tarantino.

For more information, telephone Mrs. Merrill, 625-0804.



MORE THAN just a place to pick up and send mail, the Carmel Post Office is a social gathering place which has become an institution in Carmel, since most residents have no home mail delivery.

TIME MAY BE running out for the familiar serivce counters in the Carmel Post Office because of refusal of one of the two landlords in the rented building to renew the lease with the Postal Service.

Carmel post office will have to move

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE POST OFFICE, as much a Carmel institution as pine trees and the Bach Festival, will have to find another location or move out of the village in five years.

But if the post office is to remain in Carmel-by-the-Sea, it will need the cooperation of the city, since current zoning may not permit construction of a new postal building of adequate size.

The General Plan Advisory Committee, which has been charged with the task of making recommendations for revision of the general plan, would like to see some provision in the new plan to permit relocation of the post office.

And the postmaster says it may be time for the city to take another look at a seven-year-old plan to build a new post office at Sunset Center in combination with public parking facilities.

But whatever direction is taken, the time is now for the city and the U.S. Postal Service to begin negotiations, in the view of Postmaster Frank Ledesma.

One of the two owners of the leased building at Dolores and Fifth — where the post office has functioned for 20 years — won't agree to a long-term extension of the lease when the current contract expires on Jan. 9, 1987.

The rear portion of the property is owned by George Gandzjuk of Carmel; the front is owned by the estate of Laura Lee, which is administered by Crocker Bank, Ledesma said. Gandzjuk is willing to negotiate an extension of the lease but Crocker Bank isn't, he said.

"We wanted to spend about $200,000 to remodel the building, paint and clean, and install a new elevator," Ledesma told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "But the Postal Service wanted a 10-year lease to amortize the costs and without it we couldn't do the work."

Furthermore, Ledesma added, Crocker Bank isn't interested in renewal of the lease in 1987. Rental of the 15,000 sq. ft. building recently jumped from $27,000 to $40,000 per year, which is "still cheap for Carmel," the postmaster said.

That works out to be about 22 cents per square foot per month.

"A post office needs at least 10,000 to 12,000 sq. ft. of space, but city ordinances restrict building size to 6,000 sq. ft.," he reflected.

"Unless that's changed, I don't know where the hell we'd go. We couldn't move the Carmel post office to the post office at the mouth of the Valley because it wouldn't be feasible to serve the people in Carmel."

Five years may seem like a long time to think about the disposition of the Carmel Post Office, but no one knows better than a bureaucrat the pace at which bureaucracies move, and Ledesma believes some preliminary discussions should be started at once between federal and municipal officials.

"I WOULD LIKE to start a dialogue going between us and the city," Ledesma said. "The decisions would be made in the regional office, but if anything is going to happen it will have to start now. The sooner we start facing the question, the better off we'll be."

Negotiations were held in 1974-75 between the city and the Postal Service on a plan for a joint project to build an expanded new post office to serve Carmel and the lower Valley, with public parking at Sunset Center. When those discussions proved fruitless, the Postal Service proceeded with construction of a building at Carmel Rancho.

The plan could be revised to build a smaller, replacement post office for Carmel, Ledesma said. With participation by the city in costs of the parking facility, a significant contribution could be made toward reduction of parking and traffic congestion, he added.

"We had a beautiful plan for the Sunset Center post office with employee parking three levels down from the street. We started working on it in 1962 and it was ready in 1974, then things broke down." There have been no recent discussions about the need for a new postal facility in Carmel, Ledesma indicated.

The Carmel Business Association had planned a January meeting with postal officials to discuss future needs of the Carmel Post Office, but that meeting never materialized, the postmaster said. "The agency is very sensitive to the needs of the business community since we get about 85 percent of our revenue from them," Ledesma said.

areas to be closer to business districts, but that isn't needed in Carmel. "It doesn't matter where we are, as long as the size of the building is adequate," Ledesma said.

The post office at 3845 Via Nona Marie at the mouth of Carmel Valley could be expanded somewhat, but not enough adequately to service the needs of Carmel, he added.

"It's a nice thing to have the post office right in town; I hope they keep it that way."

City Administrator Doug Peterson said the Postal Servicec could build whatever size structure it wanted, since it is a federal agency, but indicated that if it rents a facility it would probably be bound by local regulations which limit size to 6,000 sq. ft.

"It's a few years down the road," Peterson said. "It isn't going to happen overnight. It might be appropriate to recognize in the general plan revision that the post office may have to relocate. We're not at that point yet.

"Basically, it's an information vacuum. I don't know what the options are. I'm concerned and interested but I don't know what the processes are at the federal level."

Water reclamation project survives three tests

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE EMBATTLED Carmel Sanitary District water reclamation project has scored three favorable decisions, but is still two wins shy of an outright victory — construction.

Although the project survived several challenges at the Feb. 18 meeting of the district's board of directors, its future rests in the hands of the state.

A State Water Resources Control Board workshop March 3 will focus on an appeal by the Pebble Beach Sanitary District, which wants to invalidate the designation of Carmel Bay as an Area of Special Biological Significance and to halt further work on the water reclamation project.

The two actions go hand-in-hand because the ASBS designation led to a state directive that Carmel cease discharge of effluent into the bay between the months of May and October. The sanitary district developed the water reclamation project in response to the state mandate. The project would provide reclaimed water for Pebble Beach golf courses.

Carmel Sanitary District Manager Michael Zambory is confident the state board will not grant the Pebble Beach appeal.

"The chances are virtually nil," he said.

Zambory bases his confidence on a water resources board staff report that states: "The Pebble Beach district fails to present any new information supporting reconsideration of the Carmel Bay Area of Special Biological Significance or re-examination of the cost effectiveness of the alternatives to the approved Carmel reclamation/disposal project."

That staff recommendation, which must be approved by the state board, was a key victory for the future of the project. Carmel directors learned about the staff recommendation Feb. 18.

If the state denies the Pebble Beach appeal, the water reclamation project will have to overcome the considerable hurdle of finances.

Zambory said he expects the state to grant funds in September for the project. He said Carmel is on the priority list and he feels "certain" the project will be funded.

The federal government is expected to fund 87.5 percent of the $18.2 million project. The state and local share is 12.5 percent, Zambory said.

However, the Reagan administration has indicated that the federal government may cut its grant shares for such projects down to 75 or even 55 percent next year, Zambory said.

"Could we afford it with that level of funding? I don't know," Zambory said.

DIRECTORS VOTED 3-2 to deny a motion by Paul Beemer that Carmel reject the state's ASBS designation and abandon the reclamation project.

John Floyd sided with Beemer: "I just think the whole thing needs a second look. I hope the state will change its mind, but I doubt it."

Board President Charlotte Townsend and directors Ken McGinnis and David Tedrow voted against Beemer's motion.

Beemer has attacked the water reclamation project repeatedly over the past month as too expensive.

His prodding led to an appearance Feb. 18 by representatives of the project designers, Kennedy/Jenks Engineers, who presented a fiscal analysis of the project.

The bottom line for the individual, engineer Dick Dowd said, is that the monthly bill will increase by approximately $7.20 to $13.20 per month. The individual bill is now $6 for residences, per month.

However, Dowd indicated that the $7.20 increase is not directly attributable to the project. He said the project will increase the bill by an estimated $2.80. The additional $4.40 includes inflation and other costs which have not been passed on to the user.

Dowd said the estimated cost of the project has increased from $13.7 million to $18.2 million because several items are in the project that were not included when the original cost was estimated. Inflation has also played a key role in escalation of the estimated cost.

Dowd said a "priority" list could be established for the added items in the project. The facilities could be included in the project if money becomes available. Listed in order of his priority, the items are: sludge dewater-

Corps may protect Schulte Bridge

CORPS OF ENGINEERS officials surveyed the site of erosion damage on the south bank approach to Schulte Road Bridge last week before they decide on some type of protective measures. The group included (from left): Lt. Tim Young, Corps project management; Owen Stewart, Monterey County Flood Control District engineer; Bill McCaleb, Corps civilian planner; Jacob Tapia, designer; and Roger Golden, environmental planner.

AN ANXIOUS Schulte Road resident quizzed Lt. Tim Young from the Corps of Engineers district office in San Francisco about protection of the approach to the bridge during a field inspection last Thursday.

By ROBERT MISKIMON

PROSPECTS APPEAR good that the Corps of Engineers will perform some type of erosion protection on the south bank of the Schulte Road Bridge on the Carmel River.

Corps planner William McCaleb surveyed the threat to the south approach to the bridge last Thursday with three specialists from the San Francisco office at the request of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

McCaleb outlined three projects which could be done to protect the bridge approach from further erosion damage, ranging in cost from $50,000 to $500,000. The cost-benefit ratios of the alternatives will be analyzed and presented to Corps officials in Washington for a decision, McCaleb said.

The Board of Supervisors recently requested Corps assistance in erosion protection along the Schulte Road Bridge after the river bit off a 30-by-150 foot chunk of embankment — including the roadway and utility lines to a residence — in January.

Sixty-six residents of Carmel Valley in the Schulte Road area then petitioned the county for some relief, but the county has no funds for erosion protection on the Carmel River. The concern is that additional erosion would wipe out the roadway approach on the south side of the bridge and leave residents stranded.

In a letter to Corps District Engineer Paul Bazilowich, the Board of Supervisors indicated the total value of threatened property is $9.4 million. The county estimated it would cost $230,000 to divert the river and replace the approach if it washed out.

Supervisors told the Corps that 61 homes and 135 persons, two commercial campgrounds, one water utility plant, and 1,200 vehicles per day would be cut off if the south approach to the Schulte Road Bridge washed out.

Affected persons would be deprived of emergency fire, police, and health services, and could be left without drinking water, the supervisors informed the Corps.

"The district engineer told me he wants something done to protect the bridge approach," McCaleb said during his visit to the site last week. There appears to be little threat to the bridge itself, he added.

The three possibilities under consideration for protection of the south bank approach are:

- Placement of concrete riprap along the damaged embankment to prevent further erosion.
- Reconstruction of the washed-out roadway and protection with riprap for a distance of 288 feet upstream of the bridge.
- Rebuilding the eroded embankment and roadway and protect with riprap up to a rock outcropping 500 feet upstream.

McCALEB SAID the Corps of Engineers spent about $50,000 to protect the north bank approach to the bridge with riprap several years ago

"The approach to the bridge is in imminent danger," McCaleb said. "It would seem to me we can do something under our emergency program. Another heavy storm would wash out the area behind the bridge."

With a civilian field crew that included a designer, an environmental planner, and a Corps officer, McCaleb will prepare a report with cost estimates and a recommended project. Final approval and funding will be in the hands of Washington brass.

"We could start something within six to eight months," McCaleb said. "We want to be out of here by October. I would think we could start in June or July.

"We're looking at an emergency condition, which means whatever we do wouldn't be built to Corps standards."

Normal Corps standards provide flood and erosion protection against a 200-year flood event, whereas "this river has the capacity to contain a 20-year flood," McCaleb said. A 200-year event is a flood of a magnitude likely to occur only once every 200 years.

Once the field data are compiled, cost-benefit projections will be made. The cost-benefit ratio of the riprap project on the north bank of the Schulte Road Bridge was about 1.5-to-1, McCaleb said. In other words, each dollar spent on erosion control was estimated to provide $1.50 in property protection benefits.

Bob Binder, acting county flood control manager, said the Corps hasn't given any word on its intentions.

"They haven't given us any assurances yet," Binder said. "If they did anything, it would have to be at their expense."

How Reagan cuts would hurt schools

By ROBERT MISKIMON

CUTBACKS in state and federal programs could chop $344,000 from the Carmel Unified School District's $6 million budget in fiscal year 1982-83.

Business manager Robert Zampatti estimates President Reagan's budget — if adopted by Congress — may reduce income to the district by $164,000.

And Governor Brown's budget proposal for California for 1982-83 could result in further reductions of $180,000, Zampatti said.

Those are just two of the largest variables in the fiscal process as the board of education tries to come to grips with yet another battle of the budget. Trustees must adopt a final budget by Sept. 7.

The Reagan budget would eliminate $3 billion from federal education programs and wipe out the Department of Education.

The Reagan cuts include a $950 million reduction in remedial programs for economically disadvantaged children, elimination of an $80 million grant program for public libraries, and multi-million dollar cutbacks in federally-funded programs for the handicapped.

These effects would be felt in the Carmel Unified School District if the president's budget is enacted as proposed:

- Elimination of $14,000 per year in financial aid to federally-impacted school districts.
- Deletion of $63,000 from funds for programs for the economically disadvantaged and libraries.
- Reductions of $32,000 per year in federal funds for programs for the physically handicapped.
- Elimination of federal funds for vocational education in the amount of $28,000 per year.
- Cutbacks in the federal reimbursement for school lunches of $27,000.

At the same time, the district will realize $95,000 in savings from the closure in September of Woods and Carmelo schools, even if those facilities are not immediately rented or sold.

Complexities of the budget process were perhaps best summarized by the Budget Advisory Committee, which said in a report to the board of education:

"After struggling with the budget for the past five months, it became clear to all of us that the way the budget is put together makes it extremely difficult to determine the total cost of a specific program."

The 15-member committee appointed last August suggested that automation (by computer) of the business office and the budget process "would enable the district to make more accurate and timely decisions on how best to use diminishing funds."

The committee recommended that budget cuts be made first in the areas of administrative staff, reduction of the pupil-teacher ratio at Carmel Valley High School, operation of the Carmel Valley swimming pool, central office expenses, and the Carmel High School pool.

LOWEST PRIORITY for cuts in the 1982-83 budget recommended by the committee are elementary music programs and some elementary bus schedules.

If funds are available, the committee recommended additional expenditures for building maintenance budgets, a high school computer class, increase in office staff, and an expanded music program. The committee also recommended retention of a $46,000 contingency reserve for any unexpected enrollment increase.

The committee assigned a low priority to expenditure of additional funds for curriculum development workshops, a part-time library aide at two elementary schools, and additional elementary aides or teachers.

One recommendation by the committee sure to be controversial — if it is considered by the board of education — is that fees for participation in athletic programs be reinstituted.

"The high school athletic programs cost the general fund over $55,000 in 1981-82," the committee agreed. "If funds are tight in 1982-83, ways to decrease the amount spent on athletics should be considered, including reinstituting of athletic fees, reducing the number of sports that are offered, and reducing the number of teams in each sport."

The board of education voted to drop athletic fees last August with the intention to offer academic credit, but trustees backed off from the idea last month in the face of stiff opposition from physical education teachers and coaches. The proposal is to come before the board this month.

New Carmel police chief will start March 15

JOHN McGILVRAY, a 28-year veteran of the Los Angeles Police Department, will take over as Carmel police chief March 15.

The announcement Tuesday by City Administrator Doug Peterson ended months of speculation about the successor to former chief Bill Ellis, who retired Dec. 31, 1981.

Capt. Bob Fischer, who has served as acting chief since Jan. 1, "will remain as captain and continue as acting police chief," Peterson said.

McGilvray was selected from a field of nine applicants — including Captain Fischer — finally screened for the $37,000-per-year position. A total of 43 persons applied for the job.

Initial recruitment and screening of applicants was handled by Management Assessment Centers of San Clemente, but final interviewing and selection was done by the city administrator.

Peterson said he picked McGilvray because of "his problem-solving approach and his strengths in community and public relations.

"His personality is one that fits in with the Carmel personality," Peterson said. "He will make the necessary changes in the department but will make them deliberately. There are not any particular problems; basically we have a strong department.

"But any organization can be strengthened and improved. In any department, morale can always be improved."

McGilvray holds a master's degree in public administration from Pepperdine University. He has served 12 of his 28 years in the Los Angeles Police Department in administrative and management positions. He also has a reserve commission in the Coast Guard.

Most recently, he has been commanding officer of the West Valley division of the police department, which encompasses 57 square miles and serves a population of 270,000 persons. McGilvray has administered 300 employees as captain.

Peterson said the West Valley division "was an area with a lot of morale problems when Captain McGilvray took over, and he's improved things and instituted a lot of community relations."

McGilvray said he will receive a pension from the Los Angeles Police Department for retirement after 20 years of service, although he will leave a $57,000 salary to accept the Carmel position.

"After 28 years with this department, the time is ripe to be leaving," McGilvray said. "My wife and I are native Californians, and we just wanted to get out of the metropolitan Los Angeles area."

McGilvray said he does not intend to "go in and turn things over" in Carmel. "Maybe nothing needs to be done."

Carmel, Big Sur LCPs will go to state March 4

THE PUBLIC will get another chance to comment on both the Carmel area and Big Sur Local Coastal Programs when the Coastal Commission meets Thursday, March 4, in Carmel.

The commission is scheduled to hold a public hearing and possibly certify with conditions the Carmel LCP. It will receive public comment on proposed revisions in the Big Sur LCP but is not scheduled to take action.

The Coastal Commission is to meet at the Carmel Holiday Inn at 9 a.m.

When it met in September, the Coastal Commission denied certification of the Carmel LCP submitted by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, but it continued public hearing on modifications of the plan suggested by coastal staff.

Since then, the Board of Supervisors — represented by Fifth District Supervisor William Peters — has attempted to solidify its position on certain issues and to find compromise positions on others.

Supervisors have held several public hearings on the Carmel area LCP and have asked for advice from the Citizens Advisory Committee on the Carmel LCP. The Coastal Commission will have an extensive staff report, the position of the Board of Supervisors, and the voluminous public record before it March 4 as it ponders the Carmel LCP.

The Big Sur LCP was conditionally certified by the Coastal Commission in September, and the county — through Supervisors William Peters and Michael Moore — has developed a set of recommended revisions intended to win the approval of the Coastal Commission.

Both the Carmel and Big Sur plans originally contained references to a transfer of development credit system to compensate property owners in areas designated for conservation through low/decreased density.

But neither plan will have specifics of how the TDC system will operate when the Coastal Commission considers them next Thursday. At the suggestion of Supervisor Michal Moore — who has taken on the task of drafting a TDC policy in the Big Sur plan — supervisors will make no specific proposal for a transfer of development credit system in the Carmel LCP.

A TDC policy would allow property owners to sell density credits from areas zoned against development to be used to increase density in areas designated as "receiver" zones. The effect of the supervisors' decision to delete reference to a TDC policy in the Carmel plan is unclear.

"The change by the supervisors isn't significant," said Monterey County staff planner Susan Hilinski, who has worked directly with the Carmel and Del Monte Forest coastal plans.

"THEY SAID they didn't want any specifics of the transfer of development credit system in the LCP," she said. "That means the TDC policy is not to be dealt with until the implementation phase.

"They did leave open the possibility of transfer of development credits from Big Sur to Carmel. The plan would still allow for implementation of TDCs later," the planner said.

One suggestion raised in a Coastal Commission staff draft recommendation is that the Carmel LCP permit application of density credits in the unincorporated Carmel area from Big Sur. Supervisor Moore's TDC proposal for Big Sur has not been completed or released for public review.

Ed Brown, regional director of the Coastal Commission staff in Santa Cruz, said the hearing on the Carmel LCP "is still open and any point in the plan can be discussed.

"Any testimony can be submitted on the recommendations previously submitted," Brown said. "The Coastal Commission closed the public hearing in September to take action on denial, and then continued the hearing on approval with modifications as proposed by the staff."

The Board of Supervisors will recommend that the Carmel area LCP be modified to permit as many as 162 residential units to be constructed on the eastern 134 acres of the Odello Ranch, in exchange for flood rights to be given the county.

The original county plan would have permitted low-density residential development of one unit per 2.5 acres, or a 100-unit hotel with restaurant and farmer's market. But a coastal staff report then recommended no development on Odello East since it is considered prime agricultural land.

A later Coastal Commission staff recommendation called for up to 58 visitor-serving units. The county hopes to get Coastal Commission approval for its version of the LCP to provide low-cost flood control at the mouth of the Carmel River by flooding of the artichoke fields.

The latest county proposal would confine development on Odello East to two spots on the southern boundary of the property adjacent to the Palo Corona (Fish Ranch) foothills.

BEEMER, however, still maintained that the project was too costly.

"Charlotte Townsend had been dubbing me Don Quixote," he said. "The windmills I'm tilting at are the big spenders."

Beemer said when he first came on the board about a year ago, he favored the project. "However, about a month ago I began to reassess my position and wonder what it's all about."

Beemer claims that the ASBS designation for the bay is a "false assumption." He said the effluent being discharged is not harmful to the marine life.

However, the majority of board members disagreed with him.

"There is no question that the reclamation project is the most cost effective disposal alternative," Mrs. Townsend said.

After the 3-2 vote, the reclamation project moved foward when Pebble Beach Co. (formerly Pebble Beach Corp.) officially signed contracts that guarantees it will buy reclaimed water from the sanitary district project to irrigate the golf courses.

The 30-year contract guarantees Pebble Beach will buy at least 27,320 hundred cubic feet of reclaimed water per year beginning in January, 1985.

Under terms of the contract, the cost of reclaimed water will never exceed the cost of potable water. If reclaimed water is less expensive than potable water, Pebble Beach will pay the lesser price. Pebble Beach is also allowed to subtract the cost of necessary capital improvements from the price of the water.

Pebble Beach currently buys potable water from California-American Water Company for 88 cents per 100 cubic feet.

Bob Grace, vice-president of real estate for Pebble Beach Company, said the reclaimed water will be purchased from May through October.

The contract signed Feb. 18 covers Pebble Beach Golf Course, Spyglass, Peter Hay and Polo Field and the proposed course at Spanish Bay.

A contract for the proposed Hilltop Golf Course in Pebble Beach, was signed by the Northern California Golf Association Feb. 22, Zambory said.

The effluent dumped in the bay is treated at a secondary level; however, the reclaimed water will be cleansed to a tertiary level.

Hike planned to Blomquist Ranch Park

The Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District and the Sierra Club jointly will sponsor a hike Saturday, Feb. 27 to the 640-acre Blomquist Ranch in upper Carmel Valley.

The steep, rugged parcel was recently acquired by the parks district as open space for limited public use. It is located 22 miles from Highway 1 in the upper reaches of Carmel Valley.

Hikers should wear comfortable shoes, bring a sack lunch, and meet at 8:30 a.m. at Brinton's Hardware at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, or at 8:50 at Garland Ranch Regional Park.

The hike will be a 10-mile roundtrip through relatively flat grassland, said parks manager Gary Tate.

Delays expected on city 'mini-mart' ordinance

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CARMEL PLANNING Commission Chairman Robert Stephenson believes regulation of "mini-marts" is such a complex and controversial issue that it will be months before the city adopts an ordinance.

"I can see that this thing may go on for months. The more we get into it, the more complex it becomes," Stephenson said after the commission held a study session Feb. 17.

"I don't want to see us do anything too hastily," he said. "I would like to see more interest from landlords and the business owners."

The commission was expected to tackle the issue again last night, Feb. 24. Stephenson said he would allow public comment and then continue the hearing until March.

The city imposed a moratorium on subdivision of retail space into small shops April 6, 1981. The moratorium was extended Aug. 3, 1981 and will probably be extended again if Stephenson's prediction of a lengthy hearing process comes true.

The moratorium was imposed in response to the subdivision of the Paradise building, northeast corner of Ocean and Dolores, into smaller shops. Several city officials and business people said these mini-marts lead to the proliferation of "schlock" merchandise in the business district.

Businesses in the Paradise building include Carmel Photoart, photo gallery and film processing; the Sports Fan, sports-related gift items; Designer Jeans of Carmel, a clothing store; Treasures, a jewelry store; Heart of Carmel, novelty gifts; House of Windsor, poster and art gallery; Charcoal Sketch Portraits, artist's business; The T-Shirt Shop, clothing; and Lloyd's Shoes, shoe shop.

Planning Director Bob Griggs said there are several current buildings that are large enough for conversion into mini-marts, including:the Carmel Post Office, the China Art Center, Dolores and Seventh; Sprouse Reitz, Ocean between Mission and San Carlos; Dick Bruhn's, Ocean between Mission and San Carlos; Strawberry Patch, Ocean between Mission and San Carlos and most of the bank buildings.

Three of the five commissioners contacted after the Feb. 17 study session indicated they were in favor of an ordinance to limit the number and size of small retail shops that lease space inside larger buildings. These buildings are called "mini-marts."

However, Stephenson and Commissioner Arthur Mertens said they "reluctantly" favored an ordinance.

"No, I'm not in favor of having an ordinance, if merchants would have the good taste and the good sense to maintain the high quality of merchandise in Carmel," said Stephenson. "I'm not in favor of controlling business through an ordinance just to have an ordinance."

But, Stephenson added, "the situation has deteriorated so much" that he now favors an ordinance.

Mertens amplified Stephenson's comments and added that it was his impression from the meeting that commissioners wanted "to get rid of all of the schlock merchandise."

Mertens said that the issue of controlling mini-marts was raised because of the Paradise building.

"What brought this whole thing to a head was the terrible deterioration of the old David's store to what is now Laub's (owner Paul Laub)," said Mertens. "Some people feel that the merchandise is sleazy and it downgrades the image of the town. There is no question that it concerns me."

DAVID GREENWOOD, who said he was representing the Carmel Business Association, was the only person in the audience Feb. 17 when the Carmel Planning Commission discussed regulation of "mini marts." The lack of attendance by members of the business community was criticized by two commissioners. (Michael Gardner photograph)

MERTENS ADDED that during the meetings of an ad hoc committee on the mini-marts (see related story, this issue), merchants supported an ordinance.

"At the meeting of the ad hoc committee, of the three representatives of the business community present, two of them repeatedly stated that they wanted a strong ordinance. There was a strong inference what they were really concerned about was the quality of merchandise," he said.

Planning Commissioner Sandy Swain was more adamant about a proposed ordinance: "I think it's terribly necessary. I would say just no subdividing of anything with four walls, but I'm in the minority as usual. We're all running scared. I think we should just have a blanket ordinance prohibiting them."

Maggie Hays, resident manager of Carmel Plaza, said she favored an ordinance, but did not want mini-marts abolished completely. There is a covered mini-mart at Carmel Plaza.

"I think that definitely there should be guidelines established on what is an esthetically pleasing mini-mart," she said. "I have mixed emotions about small businesses of that nature. If it is really beautifully done, I think that the small uses very often are the only avenue open."

David Gordon, vice president of Laub International, owners of the Paradise building, contended that an ordinance would be "unfair" to businesses that cannot afford high rents.

"A lot of people can't afford large buildings. Who can afford $10,000 a month?" Gordon questioned.

Gordon added that a mini mart lowers rents, provides more business, and increases employment opportunities.

THE PLANNING COMMISSION meeting Feb. 17 focused on formulas to determine the size and number of shops that would be allowed inside larger buildings.

Noting that just one person -- George Greenwood -- was in the audience, Stephenson said: "I get a little irritated about us being accused of being in opposition to the business community and when they are specifically invited to the meetings, they don't come."

Swain agreed: "We get a great deal of criticism from representatives of the business community. Where are they now?"

Greenwood, manager of the Wells Fargo Bank branch in Carmel, said he was present to represent the Carmel Business Association.

City Attorney George Brehmer, who asked for the study session so that he could receive suggestions from commissioners before a draft ordinance is prepared, said it is important to maintain high-quality business in Carmel.

"You could be assured with an ordinance, that it would be designed in a tasteful way-...suitable to the standards of the commercial district," Brehmer said.

Brehmer added that a proposed ordinance should cover new construction and current buildings. He also suggested that the ordinance regulate mini-marts that have roofs and the open courtyard type of shopping areas.

Commissioners pondered a formula that could be devised to ensure a certain amount of public access, limit the number of shops, and yet give the landlord the opportunity for some flexibility in shop size.

COMMISSIONER GENE CAVA suggested an 80-20 percent formula with an average shop size. His proposal said the building could be subdivided into 80 percent retail space and 20 percent for public access.

The 80 percent could be divided any way the landlord chose, but the average shop size requirement would have to be met. Cava suggested an average shop size of 600 square feet.

However, under the Uniform Building Code, the issue becomes more complex, Building Inspector Ron Warren said.

Warren said the size and number of shops are also regulated by fire safety codes. And, restooms may also be provided. "Would the public access be taken out of the space for restrooms, or would that be included in the square footage for the shops?" Warren questioned.

Commissioner James Wright said a formula would have to provide that public access be increased as the number of shops increases. If a landlord wanted more shops, he would have to provide more public access, Wright said.

After nearly a half hour of discussion, Stephenson said: "I think it (the issue) should be carried over to the next meeting. We have a problem here that's going to take a lot longer than this meeting or the next."

Once approved by the planning commission, a proposed ordinance would be sent to the city council for consideration.

Special ad-hoc committee offers 11 'mini-mart' recommendations

A city council-appointed ad hoc committee has presented 11 recommendations to the planning commission regulating "mini marts" in Carmel.

In a private meeting Feb. 11, the committee developed the list of recommendations after nearly three hours of discussion, according to City Attorney George Brehmer Jr.

Members present included council members Helen Arnold and Howard Brunn; planning commissioners Art Mertens, Jim Wright and Bob Stephenson; Paul Laub, owner of the Paradise building; Steve Jacobs, co-owner of Carmel Plaza; Mark Raggett, retired businessman; Bob Griggs, City Planning Director; and Brehmer.

The planning commission held a study session on mini-marts Feb. 17 and another last night, Feb. 24. The commission is expected to postpone action on a proposed ordinance limiting mini marts until at least March. (See related story, this issue)

Brehmer noted in a memo to the planning commission that: "the committee concluded by consensus that the following are important for preserving and improving the quality of merchandising and thus, the economic well-being of the commercial district:

- "Each retail unit should be enclosed and individual having its own access directly to a public street, court or interior public open space.
- "True concessions operating within a store are okay, a true concession being a retail operation within a store where the concession is carried on so that from all outward appearances the store is one retailing unit (no individual signs) and the store owner maintains overall control, all money flows through the store owner's cash registers and high quality overall ambiance is maintained through central responsibility.
- "New buildings and remodeled buildings should be required to have an average minimum square footage for retail spaces and a mix of sizes of retail spaces. For example, if the new building has 3,000 square

Increased rents drive another business out

By FLORENCE MASON

THERE'S ANOTHER EMPTY shop in Carmel, on Sixth between Dolores and Lincoln. Once again, it is increasing rents that forced out the owner.

Gifts from Bacchus "could not take recent rent increases," according to Dr. Roy Thomas, Carmel dentist and one of the owners of the Monterey Peninsula Winery. He said that what had started out to be a wine-tasting room had to change its emphasis to wine-related gifts in order to qualify for a business license at that location when it opened about four years ago: "City officials told us that it would have to be at least half in gift sales, with wine as an accessory use," Thomas said.

Unfortunately, the name Gifts from Bacchus didn't really tell the public that it was also a wine-tasting room and that fact could not be advertised. "We couldn't sell enough gifts to make the rent after the last couple of increases," Dr. Thomas said, "so we had to close." The closing was so quiet that it took even neighboring stores, such as Harriet Duncan's, by surprise.

Thomas, whose profession is dentistry, hasn't lost his enthusiasm for the wine business, however. He spoke with pride of the many prizes won by the Monterey Peninsula Winery and said he still very much enjoys being part of it. "If we can find something smaller, we'll do it," he said. He added, however, that this would more likely be in Monterey.

I'm told that the Weston Gallery, just east of the vacated building, would like to expand into that space. A hearing was scheduled for the Feb. 24 session of the Board of Adjustments.

THE IRS EMPTIES THE TULIP BASKET

There were almost as many Internal Revenue Service representatives as prospective buyers on hand Feb. 11 when the remaining gift items and fixtures at the Tulip Basket were sold at auction. If the sale was advertised, I missed it somehow. But, passing by, I noticed signs and went in.

There were some excellent bargains to be had. As reported in this column last month, the IRS closed the shop for non-payment of taxes. This was the final clearing out of what had been — to my mind — one of the most attractive shops in town. Now the space in Su Vecino Court is starkly empty.

45 MORE AT THE CROSSROADS!

Phase Two of The Crossroads has begun! The new construction — 45 stores and/or restaurants — will follow the bend of the boulevard off Rio Road, wrapping around toward the back of the Carmel Center Mall.

That's the news we heard from marketing director Debbie Bradburn. It was something of a surprise to me, coming when the count of businesses open in the first phase is only six. However, about 25 more shops have been leased; only 18 remain available and Ms. Bradburn said "lots are out for signing."

The second phase is expected to take about six months to complete. All the buildings will be in the same style as those in the original group and the same ratio of types of stores and restaurants is being planned.

Last weekend, when I walked through The Crossroads, I saw that the trees are beginning to look as though they had been growing there for years. (Some of them have, but many more were brought here just to enhance the new shopping center.) There were still a number of workmen around, but increasing numbers of customers and sightseers were in evidence as well.

The first six businesses to open are The Baobab Collection, Monterey Baking Co., Billy Quon's restaurant, Vitamin Center, The Scandia Down Shop and Michael Lee's gallery. Readers of this column will know quite a bit more about each of them; watch for a first-hand report on Billy Quon's next week.

REALTORS' ANSWER TO 'ZERO GROWTH'

There's a new organization of Realtors of the Monterey Peninsula and Salinas — the Monterey County Council of Real Estate Boards, Inc. According to president, Bert Saunders, the purpose is "to coordinate our efforts with local governments in solving our county wide housing needs." Among the officers is L.R. Bemis of Carmel, vice president.

The organization has hired a director, Sheryl McKenzie, who will help the group to become more active in the political process on legislation affecting private property. The council consists of five representatives each from the realty boards of the Monterey Peninsula, Carmel and Salinas.

According to Bemis, associated with Del Monte Realty in Carmel and Pebble Beach, the organization is the answer to the "intense zero growth movement." He said, "We've interested in private property. Sometimes we have found out things we should have known about after the fact — after discussion and vote in planning commissions, city councils, other boards. Now we will have someone to monitor those meetings, and if there is a direct interest for Realtors, we'll have members there to testify."

Sheryl McKenzie doesn't think she would like to be a "lobbyist" but she does like the title and role of Director of Local Governmental Relations. She expects to be working behind the scenes, gathering information for the Realtors so they can stay on top of whatever is going on "out there." She sees it as a matter of getting to know the people as well as the issues that affect the real estate business.

THE BAKER AS ARTIST

Hector de Smet invited interested persons to come and view a "work in progress" at his bakery on Ocean Avenue. I quickly accepted the invitation and thereby met a charming young man who is both baker and artist.

He is Jim Dennis, a Pacific Grove resident who has been in these parts about 3½ years. At present, he is carrying out the tasks of baking and painting in the same location; he is doing a mural for the east wall of the bakery. It's a view of Ocean Avenue in perspective and features several of the Alligators that are de Smet's symbols. (The alligator bread that can be bought there is a trademark; there are also T-shirts with alligators on them, towels, bags and other items for sale. While in the shop, I also noticed a number of signs featuring alligators, the most enchanting being one over the door to the baking room: "The Flour Garden."

Dennis came from Las Vegas, "for the weather and because of this beautiful Peninsula." Some of his art training had been in Europe and he has also taken classes at Hartnell.

Although he has another mural project underway — a map of the Peninsula for the Cypress Tree Inn in Monterey — he is not just a muralist. He has several canvases going, and some sculpture as well. But for now, he has a steady income from what might also be considered an art form — baking.

There is another excitement in his life: when I talked to him it had only been a week since he and his wife, Martha, learned that they are to become first-time parents. Mrs. Dennis works at Holman's in Pacific Grove.

HIDDEN BEHIND a yellow cloth on the east wall of Hector de Smet Bakery is a mural that is being created by baker Jim Dennis and manager Melody Gibson. The two said they don't know when the grand unveiling will be held. Hector de Smet Bakery in on Ocean Avenue, between Dolores and Lincoln.

The Poster Lady stresses the advantages of decorating with art posters by old masters as well as contemporary greats. One of the chief advanteages, she says, is that they are affordable. "The art poster is as suitable for commercial decorating as it is for the home. Hotels and motels in particular can benefit." She adds that since the art poster is an art form in every sense of the word, it will increase in value. Among the artists whose work she offers are Rembrandt, Monet, Chagal and Picasso.

The lady herself had an art gallery at Heritage Harbor until that Montery complex fell on bad times. That was her first business venture when she came here 2½ years ago from New York, where she had been in a different field — party arranging and catering.

"It was time to leave New York," she told me. "Like so many others I came here and fell in love with it. I turned my life completely around; it was one of the best decisions I ever made." Single, she lives in Carmel and can be reached through the Mail Box in Monterey, which takes messages for her art poster and interior decorating consulting activities.

What is her name? The Poster Lady!

A DESIGNING COUPLE

Next Monday, March 1, is opening day for a delightful new business in Carmel: Seger's Kitchen Design. It's all in an olive green house on the west side of Mission, north of Fifth.

Each room of the house has been converted to showcase a model kitchen. Three major lines of kitchen cabinets are represented: Mutschler, Allmilmo and Woodmode, all to be custom-designed to fit the personal situation.

Two of the model kitchens also serve as offices. Rita Seger is an interior designer, the former owner of Seger's French Country Look in The Barnyard. She also decorated the kitchen at the Decorators' Show House last may for Hidden Valley. Her interest is in working with architects, designers, contractors or the individual homeowner from her own design office in this interesting old house.

Robert Seger is an architect who specializes in kitchen and bath design. He hand-selected the custom lines of cabinetry represented in his design studio.

Several months ago, when the Segers won approval for their business license, Planning Director Bob Griggs commented that this was a good business for the community to have. "It's good to have professional help nearby." This was exactly in line with the Segers' belief that in an area where people are coming and going so much, there is a fine market for remodeling kitchens.

THE MEANING OF COMMUNITY

It's obvious that the officers of the National Bank of Carmel consider "community" one of the most relevant words when talking about their bank. That was the emphasis when they sent out about 6,000 questionnaires asking for the respondents' opinions about the community and about the bank.

The surverys, mailed to property owners in the bank's service area — Carmel, Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach — brought a nine percent response, considered high for this type of questionnaire. The questions were divided between those evaluating community needs and those asking about the bank's services.

Most of the people responding were high in praise of their communities, stressing the beauty, weather, cultural opportunities and friendly people as the chief assets. They were in agreement, too, on some of the key problems. Approximately 85 percent cited parking and traffic problems as their major concern. Concern for the environment, especially the specter of over-building, was also named by many.

As for the bank and its services, the theme that seemed to run through the replies was a desire to be known personally by bank officers and employees. Many people said they would like the convenience of 24-hour service through automatic teller machines (and the bank has sought Planning Commission approval to install them). However, being known by name ("not just being a number to the bank") was of equal importance. The implication seemed to be that they wanted to be friends, not just customers.

Expressing appreciation for the existence of a community bank, a number of respondents also emphasized the value of having that bank make loans within its own community.

Many like coming into town to do their banking, but others would prefer branches in Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach, with the main support still coming from Carmel.

What effect will the results of this survey have on the bank's plans and practices? President and chief executive officer Don Nelson said that it would give them direction for some time to come. Immediately, they will be planning to sponsor some seminars (in addition to one already held), answering requests for more information on such subjects as money management and estate planning.

Executive vice president Bob Boynton said that the survey pinpointed their marketing concerns for the year to come — what the community needs and what the bank can do.

The bank's concern, however, will not extend to taking stands on controversial issues, although it will definitely consider sponsoring a town hall or forum on such issues.

Nelson, who lives in Pebble Beach, and Boynton, a Carmel resident, acknowledged that there was room for both community banks and larger "national" ones. They seemed to see clearly that their bank has a special obligation to be "a good corporate citizen in its local area."

A COUPLE OF NOTES...

• Le Bistro, popular restaurant on San Carlos near Ocean, is expanding its inner seating capacity. But those who enjoy al fresco meals needn't despair — there will still be patios, front and rear.

• Don't forget the Carmel Business Association breakfast meeting March 4! You can have coffee and rolls with the candidates for mayor and City Council...8 a.m. at the La Playa Hotel.

Stephanie Rose Loftus

It's a girl!

The new resident at the Carmel home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Tice Loftus is Stephanie Rose who was born at Community Hospital on Jan. 31. She was born at 3:40 p.m., weighed 8 pounds, 10 ounces and was 21 inches long. She has big brown eyes and lots of dark hair.

The new mother went through 36 hours of labor before it was decided that an emergency Cesarean was necessary to bring Stephanie into the world. Because of the change of plans, Stephanie's dad missed out on being present for her birth, but to help ease the disappointment the doctor brought the baby out of the delivery room and let the new father weigh and measure her. He also watched while the doctor examined and tested Stephanie and then spent hours rocking her in the big rocking chair in the nursery.

Stephanie's dad owns and operates the Loftus Landscape and Plant Care Company. Her mom is the general manager of retail stores with the Pebble Beach Company. She is now on leave and hopes to extend that leave a few extra months so she can spend more time with the new baby.

Stephanie's grandparents are Mrs. Arlene Loftus of Bolinas and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cava of Carmel. Grandpa Cava took movie film of Stephanie's first few hours so that her mother would not miss out on anything.

Just to make sure there are no hard feelings about her complicated birth, little Stephanie is being a real angel — eating well and sleeping most of the time. She was named after her dad and her grandma.

The world welcomes you, Stephanie!

Adam Harris Swartz

It's a boy!

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Swartz of Carmel welcomed their first child, Adam Harris, on Jan. 14. Adam was born at Community Hospital at 11:08 p.m., weighed six-and-one-half pounds and was 18 inches long. He has blond hair and dark eyes.

Adam's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Swartz of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Mrs. Eleanore Weir of Monterey. This is the first grandchild for grandma Eleanore, who said the new mother, "has been a great help. I don't know what I would have done without her."

Adam's father is an attorney in Monterey. His mom is a flight attendant with TWA (out of San Francisco) and is hoping she can extend her maternity leave to six months.

Snoozing during the day comes easy for Adam but when nighttime arrives the party begins. Determined not to be a slouch in this "shared parenting," dad gets up to take care of the diaper chores while mom catches a few extra winks.

The new parents keep telling the family pooch, Jack, that Adam is his new brother. To show that he understands, Jack keeps poking his head in the bassinet to get a closer look at the little newcomer.

Welcome to the world, Adam!

Alexander Scott Beaton

Shortly after Alexander Scott Beaton was born he was waltzed around the delivery room in the arms of his father. "This is our third child so my husband feels very comfortable in the delivery room," said the new mother. "He's a great help with all the children and does much of the cooking as well as helping with the new baby chores."

The happy parents are Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Beaton Jr., of Carmel. Their two other children are Will, 6, and Molly, 4.

Baby Alex was born at Community Hospital on Jan. 29 at 9:08 a.m., weighed 8 pounds, 11 ounces and was 21 inches long. He has lots of reddish-blond hair and eyes that look as if they're going to be brown.

His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Beaton Sr., of Hollywood and Mr. and Mrs. David Moreen of Farmington Hills, Mich.

Alex's dad is in broadcasting on the Monterey Peninsula and his mom has her hands full being wife and mother.

Just as she was with the two older children, Grandma Moreen was here for Alex's birth. She said that she loves Carmel and is delighted when she has a new grandchild because it gives her the opportunity to return for a visit.

Naturally, Alex is a terrific baby and a very welcome addition to the Beaton Clan.

Welcome Alex!

Antonia Elin Massa-MacLeod

Little Annie has arrived!

John and Chickie Massa MacLeod are the proud parents of a baby girl, Antonia Elin, born at Community Hospital on Jan. 28. Since she doesn't look like an Antonia, her parents immediately dubbed her Annie.

Anne was born at 12:11 a.m., weighed 7 pounds, 8 ounces and was 20 inches long. She arrived with a generous amount of brown hair and slate blue eyes.

Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. C.A. MacLeod of Bandow, Ore., and Mr. and Mrs. John Massa of Salinas. Her parents own and operate Note'orious Cards and Stationery in Carmel.

Along with some of her parents' friends Annie's grandpa John and grandma Elsie paced the hospital floor while waiting for Annie to arrive. Her mother says that Annie is a terrific baby and that "dear old dad shares all the baby chores including getting up during the night."

The family pooch is delighted with the new arrival but the two family felines let it be known that they are quite unhappy with Annie's lung capacity.

Welcome Annie Elin!

Sarah Rose Little

Miss Sarah Rose Little doesn't believe in wasting time. She arrived in the world exactly one hour after giving her mother the first warning. Things happened so fast that Sarah almost made her debut without the assistance of her doctor!

Sarah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lawson Little III of Carmel Valley. Her 26-month-old brother, Christopher, would have absolutely nothing to do with Sarah when she first arrived but has now decided that he enjoys kissing and petting the new family member.

Sarah's grandparents are Mrs. Lawson Little Jr. of Del Mesa Carmel and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Salmeri.

Born at Community Hospital at 4:15 a.m. on Feb. 2, Sarah weighed 6 pounds, 4 ounces and was 18 inches long. She has brown hair and eyes.

Her dad is with Quail Lodge Realty and her mom, who worked with Cal-Am for 10 years, says she has retired to being wife and mother.

Maybe Sarah arrived so fast because she knew that her grandmas Dorothy and Mary and her aunt Vivian were all doing their share of "floor-pacing."

Welcome to the world, Sarah Rose!

New toll-free line available for information on parks

A new toll-free telephone number has been installed to provide information on state park campsites and Hearst Castle tour reservations. The number is (800) 952-5580. It is in operation Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The telephone is staffed by employees of the State Department of Parks and Recreation to offer detailed and up-to-date information on procedures for using the statewide computerized reservation system for state parks operated by Ticketron. The number cannot be used to make reservations.

Reservations for state park campsites and Hearst Castle tours may be made in person at all Ticketron outlets in California. Locations of the outlets may be obtained by phoning in the Los Angeles area (213) 670-2311; in the San Diego area (714) 565-9949; in the San Francisco area (415) 393-6914; and in the Sacramento area (916) 445-8828.

Reservation request forms for family campsites, group campsites and Hearst Castle tours may be obtained from state park offices, or they may be requested by mail from Distributions Center, Department of Parks and Recreation, P.O. Box 2390, Sacramento, CA 95811.

The toll-free information service and the staff to operate it are provided for in the new Reservations System contract awarded to Ticketron on Dec. 1, 1981.

Mardi Gras huge success

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

GRAND MASKED COSTUME BALL A SMASHING SUCCESS

It could have been New Orleans at Mardi Gras time — hundreds of colorful helium-filled balloons, multi-colored streamers, baskets of flowers, street signs directing one to the French Quarter or Bourbon Street. Add this to the up-beat music of Viva Brasil and fresh oysters being shucked for eager consumption and you have the First Annual Grand Masked Costume Ball to benefit the Family Resource Center of Monterey County.

The gala, held in the interior mall at the Crossroads Center in Carmel, drew some 200 guests who arrived in costumes that ranged from gorgeous to outrageous — kings, queens, cats, clowns, bums, mimes, riverboat gamblers, court jesters and such endearing characters as Scarlett O'Hara who arrived on the arm of a dashing Rhett Butler.

The fabulous food, covering four huge buffet tables placed around the mall, was prepared, along with the beautiful decorations, by various service club volunteers.

The festive atmosphere prevailed as master of ceremonies Christopher Nance called for the Grand March to begin. Prizes were awarded for costumes in the categories of Overall Best, Most Unusual, Animal/Mineral/Vegetable, Least Socially Redeeming, Most Historically Significant, and Best Group.

The elite group of judges were Mayor Barney Laiolo, Carmel; Mayor Robert Franco, Del Rey Oaks; Mayor Glen Olea, Seaside; Mayor Joe Sviensson, Gonzales; and Supervisor Dusan Petrovic. Superior Court Judge Richard Silver had planned to attend but had to cancel due to illness.

Barbara Jackson, director of the Family Resource Center, said that she was delighted with the success of the ball and was also extremely grateful to the hundreds of volunteers who gave so generously of their time and talent. All proceeds will benefit the Center.

JESTERS PLAN RIVERBOAT GAMBOL AT RANCHO CANADA

The Jesters are at it again!

Word has leaked out that this fun-d raising group for the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art is hard at work preparing for their bi-annual Great Gambol.

Cap'n. Jack Kenaston, pilot of the "Jester Queen" and his talented crew are planning the gala which will be held at Rancho Canada on March 20.

Staging steward Marilyn Cunningham and art director Glen Bernhardt have promised an authentic riverboat atmosphere including live music and the "Queen's" casino.

Among those doing duty aboard the "Queen" are Frank Crispo, Dutch Lehman and Jim Root, who will act as procurer/navigator. Jim said that the booty will include a week in a Kona condo, courtesy of Jack Dougherty of Carmel Travel.

Don Boston of Restaurants Central will supply gift certificates for dinners at The Butcher Shop, The Sardine Factory, The Rogue and Willie Lum's. Harrington's has donated a gift certificate and Henri Corbat has donated a gorgeous gold and diamond hummingbird pin.

Showboat agents Gordon and Helen Craig say that the "Dapper Dans" and "Diamond Lils" will be providing spot entertainment — all quite secret now, but promising lots of fun.

Not to be forgotten is the fancy grub which is being arranged by Dining Steward Jack Dougherty — and, naturally, if you want to eat, you'll have to tear yourself away from the casino and stay clear of banker Chuck West.

Pulling chores with her captain husband will be First Mate Polly Kenaston. Helping to keep the decks clear will be Nancy Witacre, Madam; Alida Lehman, Ballyhooer; and Whiskey Drummer Mel Loop.

All hands have been advised to keep a shart watch for possible attack by the half-horse, half-alligator men who frequent the banks of the Carmel River in search of booty!

And last but not least, at posting time the Craigs flashed the word that they have shanghaied Gordon Duffy to serve as music director.

When you think about it it sounds as though we're in for a good old fun-d raising time!

GALA BALL TO BENEFIT YWCA SHELTER

A gala ball is planned March 6 by the federal employees on the Monterey Peninsula to assist the YWCA emergency shelter project.

The dinner-dance is co-sponsored by the Federal Women's Programs (FWP) of the Defense Language Institute and Fort Ord as part of the observance of National Women's History Week, March 7-13. Also assisting with the ball are the FWP of the Naval Postgraduate School and the YWCA.

The gala, at the Monterey Holiday Inn, will include a no-host cocktail hour followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Entertaintment will include live music and flamenco dancers. All proceeds from the ball will be donated to the YWCA shelter project and will be matched, dollar for dollar, by a grant from the Maurine Church Coburn Trust.

Reservations must be made before March 3. Tickets are $14 per person. For further information or tickets, contact one of the following: at DLI, call Marge Bennet, 242-8105, or the YWCA at 649-0834.

LUNCHEON FOR DOCENTS OF TOR HOUSE FOUNDATION

Docents 32 strong of the Tor House Foundation met at the Thunderbird Book Store in The Barnyard for luncheon last Wednesday afternoon.

The luncheon was organized by Agnes Nohrnberg, Ann Yost and Hazel Mohler, a three-woman committee organized the first of the year to run the docent program.

Guest speaker was board member Dick Tevis who gave a short talk on future plans including the Robinson Jeffers Festival which will be the second week in October.

The docents conduct tours of Tor House, the grounds and Hawk Tower. They are looking for new members and now welcome men, as well as women.

Hazel Mohler is in charge of training new docents. The training includes one intensive learning session and two days of "tailgating" a regular docent through a tour. Each tour is different, with some docents giving readings of Jeffers' works.

Another recently formed docent program is for those people who don't want to give tours but who would like to be involved in hospitality and special events such as the annual festival.

The Robinson Jeffers Festival is one of the Foundation's biggest events of the year. Stage and movie great, Dame Judith Anderson, plans to return for the October event. Dame Judith, by the way, recently opened in Knoxville, Tenn. in Media, which was written especially for her by Jeffers. But instead of playing the lead as she did in the original Broadway hit, 84-year-old Dame Judith is playing the part of the maid. This remarkable woman will give readings of Jeffers' works during the festival.

Other proposed events planned by the Foundation (but not in connection with the Festival) are bus tours through Jeffers country and a garden party in May.

The docents meet monthly, alternating the meetings between a luncheon or a tea. Anyone interested in becoming a docent should call Agnes Nohrnberg at 624-5840 or Jane Herbst at the Tor House Foundation, 624-1813.

Interesting to note that the docents, through the tours, earned $5,000 last year to benefit the Foundation. They plan to do even better this year.

DR. ALLEN E. FUHS RECEIVES DAR MEDAL OF HONOR

Dr. Allen E. Fuhs of Carmel recently received the DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution) Medal of Honor. The award was presented at the organization's February Awards Tea at St. John's Chapel under the sponsorship of the Commodore Sloat Chapter of DAR. The presentation was made by California State Regent, DAR, Mrs. Robert Hunter of Oakland.

The medal, the highest bestowed by the DAR, is awarded only to a native-born citizen who has exhibited superior qualities of leadership and has made an outstanding and lasting contribution to the community and to the nation.

Dr. Fuhs, a professor with the Department of Aeronautics at the Naval Postgraduate School, was approved by the National Society of DAR to receive the honor. A teacher, scientist and former Naval officer, Dr. Fuhs was selected for this honor because of his local involvement in the Lyceum program for gifted students, his leadership with the Girl Scouts and volunteer service rendered as a speaker to philanthropic organizations, as well as his national leadership as consultant to the FAA, the Department of the Interior, the National Academy of Sciences/AFSC Propulsion Panel and other government boards.

Dr. Fuhs is listed in Who's Who in America and is a Fellow in the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics and a Fellow in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

'PROMISSORY NOTES' PERFORM TO FULL HOUSE

Thanks to four terrific and talented women, the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula will receive $1,500 and this amount will be matched by the Maurine Church Coburn Charitable Trust.

The Promissory Notes, also known as Frances Polk, Jesma Smith, Marie-Therese Taylor and B. Tomlinson, performed to a full house at the Jacks Peak home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith last Tuesday.

After the arrangements played by the exciting dual piano group, ranging from Friml to Mozart, Mrs. Taylor entertained the enraptured group with a selection of French songs.

Following the performance guests enjoyed an elegant continental buffet with an abundant board of foods prepared by board members of the Lyceum. There was also an array of Chinese delicacies donated by Willie Lum's Restaurant.

CARMELITES KNOW THEIR BRIDGE

Local residents left their mark at the Golden State Regional Duplicate Bridge Tournament at the Monterey Conference Center the last week of January.

Carencay Hanel was on the winning team in the Super Swiss Team event and she also qualified in the Open Pairs and placed in two Sections.

Ted Holt was first overall in three side games, placed overall in another and qualified in the Open Pairs.

J.D. Clinton placed overall in the Super Open Pairs, and Emilie Smart had a Section first in the Womens' Pairs.

Other residents who showed well in the tournament were Chuck Chernoff, Lois Ebert, Bill Edmunds, Irene Groves, Phaimie McFeely, Lyde Mink, and Jewel and Glyn Smart.

Congratulations to all!

ART AUCTION PREVIEW PARTY AT THE TAHER ABAID HOME

The 23rd Annual Beacon House Art Auction Preview Party for artists and sponsors will be held at the Pebble Beach home of Mr. and Mrs. Taher Obaid on Friday, March 5. The affair will include a 6 p.m. buffet reception.

Assuring us of good local art works are Mrs. Pat Totten, Miguel Dominguez and Joseph Tanous, who are in charge of art donations. Paintings donated by the artists for the auction will be displayed for preview and those present will vote for their favorites.

The winners will be announced at the art auction at Rancho Canada on March 13.

Co-chairmen of this year's events are Mrs. Fred Salyer and John Roland.

Puppets help children learn about handicaps

"A feeling of unease comes when we can't look past the differences to see how much we are alike," said Regina (Jean) Mortiz of Outlook Dr., Carmel, talking about the need to introduce schoolchildren to some of the realities of life for children who come under the umbrella term "handicapped."

Children have a natural curiosity, she explained, but they are also very sensitive and pick up an adult's discomfort with certain subjects.

When she saw "The Kids on the Block" puppets on the television show, Good Morning America, Mrs. Moritz knew that their inventor, Barbara Aiello, had found the way to bring kids information and awareness about special children in an easy and unthreatening way.

"As a teacher and a mother I saw right away what these puppets could do," said Mrs. Moritz.

Ms. Aiello, a nationally-known special educator and writer, designed the child-sized puppets — handicapped and non-handicapped — to show children what it is like to be disabled and how handicapped and non-handicapped children can be friends.

Through "Mark Riley," who has cerebral palsy; "Ellen Jane Peterson," who is mentally retarded; "Renaldo Rodriquez," who is blind; and "Jennifer Hauser," who has a learning disability, children learn that disabled children are competent, lively, responsive and, in many ways, "just like normal people."

A member of Developmental Disability Area Board Seven, one of three members appointed by the Monterey County Board of Supervisor, Mrs. Moritz dreamed of bringing "The Kids of the Block" to the four counties included in the board's geographical area.

"I know that money is tight in the schools right now," Mrs. Moritz said. "So I go to principals of individual schools with suggestions for what I call 'creative funding,' such as tapping school improvement funds, getting PTA donations and so on. One principal even brought the program to the attention of the student body and got money from their fund."

She hired the Magic Pearl Puppeteers, Silvio Frank and Elizabeth Clements, and has recently added a puppeteer who knows sign language. The scripts, which highlight each puppet, are only 10 minutes long each, and time for questions follow with the youngters addressing their questions to the puppets.

"You can see that the puppeteers have to prepare a log in order to be able to handle these questions," Mrs. Moritz pointed out. "In setting fees based on $10 an hour per puppeteer I'm really keeping costs low."

In Carmel, some students at both Carmel Woods and Carmelo schools have met "The Kids on the Block," and Mrs. Moritz hopes to have more presentations here. As handicapped people come more and more into "mainstream" school and society, there is an increasing need to anticipate children's questions about these "different" people whom they will meet, she explained the importance of the program.

"I'm really grateful that the owners of Carmel Plaza saw the value of what I'm trying to do," she said. "That way the program can be going on while I keep on searching for funding. Right now, the school sometimes pays only part of the costs, and the rest comes out of the donations."

While scripts and questions necessarily focus on what makes a handicapped child different, Mrs. Moritz always ends the presentations with the reminder that Ms. Aiello has also included in her scripts: "These children are more like you, than different."

JEAN MORITZ feels that children can be taught about handicaps through her puppets.

Hudson plans will proceed without conceptual approval by supervisors

THE HUDSON family of Point Lobos will press ahead with plans for a 240-unit hilltop hotel without conceptual approval from the Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors have agreed to a Coastal Commission staff recommendation that 120-unit hotels be developed on both the Hudson and adjacent Riley ranches, or a single hotel of 220 rooms.

The recommendation is to be considered by the Coastal Commission March 4 as part of the Carmel area Local Coastal Program.

It leaves open the possibility for development of the Headlands Preserve project if the Hudsons can negotiate an agreement with their cousins, the Whislers and Wilsons, owners of the Riley property.

John Hudson, spokesman for the family, said he was disappointed that supervisors did not express "conceptual approval" for the headlands project.

The plan also envisions 30 low-cost visitor units (20 hostel units and 10 camping units), 24 units of low-income employee housing, and a 42-unit clustered single family development on a parcel southwest of the hotel.

Several hiking trails would be developed, and access to the hilltop hotel would be by means of an aerial tramway which would run 800 feet up San Jose Canyon near the Carmelite Monastery.

"They (supervisors) chickened out and left the plan the way it was in the original LCP," Hudson said. The Citizens Advisory Committee on the Carmel Area LCP endorsed the inclusion of an incentive for a single, larger hotel on either the Hudson or Riley properties.

The committee recommended that the LCP permit a single, 220-unit hotel on either the Hudson or Riley ranches, or 100-unit hotels on each property.

Hudson said he feels the density which the proposed Carmel LCP would permit his family's property is unfairly lower than that afforded the Riley Ranch. Both are across Highway 1 opposite Point Lobos.

"On their 143 acres, they would get a 120-unit hotel and 18 houses," Hudson said. "On our 250 acres, we get a 120-unit hotel and 22 homes. They get one unit per five acres and we get one unit per 10 acres.

"We are not going to simply accept those numbers on residential density. It's obvious that the supervisors already had decided what to do."

Hudson said negotiations between the property owners are still open on some method by which the Whislers and Wilsons could be given an equity in the Hudson hotel project in exchange for abandonment of their hotel plans.

"We hope to be able to convince our cousins to go in with us on one hotel," he said. "The indications are they may agree to something. We'd give them 50 percent of our interest in exchange for their development rights."

Committee proposals:

feet on the ground floor, the average minimum size may be 600 square feet. Thus, the floor might provide for all 600-square-foot stores or one 1,800-square-foot stores. The idea is to assure a reasonable mix of sizes so as to create an attractive ambiance, enhance the appearance of quality and provide customer allure while at the same time providing retail spaces of a size appropriate for high quality merchandise sales.

- "Public open space must be provided in the interior of new and remodeled buildings in relationship to the amount of square feet of retail space whenever access to retail shops is through interior public open space.
- "All interior public open space shall require design review and each business having access off of interior public open space shall be subject to sign review.
- "Interior public open space shall be subject to the provisions of the Uniform Codes with respect to safety and shall be used only for specified uses which uses may vary depending on the number of square feet devoted to public open space. Interior public open space used for commercial purposes shall be counted as retail coverage for the business using it.
- "Development of retail sales space in new construction and through remodeling should be subject to retail space size review with respect to size and mix of sizes of retail space, required to obtain a design approval permit for interior public open space and an occupancy permit. The purpose of the review would be to assure that all retail spaces are separately enclosed, have access to a public street, court or interior public space, have a reasonable mix of sizes of retail spaces with an average size of not less than 777 square feet, establish the use of public interior space and assure that design and appearance is in harmony with the objectives of maintaining and promoting village character.
- "Uses of public interior open space shall be limited to landscaping, benches, etc. Commercial uses in open area shall not be counted as part of open space.
- "Existing stores which have separately rented spaces without separate access to the public street shall be amortized out over a number of years to be determined as reasonable pursuant to accepted acounting standards.
- "Space deemed to be included in one retail space shall be all on one floor and shall be contiguous.

Remodeling half completed at Rippling River

By ROBERT MISKIMON

MONTEREY COUNTY Housing Authority Director Bruce Moore is optimistic that a half-finished $2 million remodeling project will make Rippling River in Carmel Valley economically viable and a more pleasant place for the handicapped to live.

The major overhaul, scheduled for completion in May, will rearrange living space to encourage more self-sufficiency and independence by residents, Moore said. It will alter quad-type living areas into double units to house 79 persons instead of the current capacity of 150.

Residents say they'll be glad when the concrete trucks have stopped churning, the electricians have quit re-wiring, and the carpenters have finished hammering.

Some of them remain skeptical about the ultimate result of the remodeling, and fear the county housing authority wants to turn the facility into a low-income project for seniors.

Housing authority officials have repeatedly and vigorously denied that allegation. Moore reaffirmed during a mid-project inspection tour last week that the work is intended simply to cut losses of $10,000 per month.

The $2 million remodeling project is being performed by Lewis C. Nelson & Sons of Selma, Calif. Costs are underwritten by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, from which the county purchased the facility in 1980 for $700,000.

"When we fill it up, it will break even," Moore said. Although the facility originally was designed to house 150 persons, it has never been full.

The 30 residents have been moved to one side of the sprawling complex while remodeling proceeds on the other. They will be moved once again to complete the work, Moore said.

Major focus of the remodeling is to provide individual kitchen units in the apartments, and to make living quarters more private. The swimming pool — which officials has been seldom used — will be filled with sand.

Since the county took over the facility, maid service has been eliminated, as well as a 24-hour-a-day switchboard service. Meals have been reduced from three per day to two and one-half: breakfast at 10 a.m., dinner at 4 p.m. and an evening sack meal.

Once the remodeling is complete, "we intend to ask the tenants what kind of food they want and to price it to meet their needs," Moore said. "They can then buy their meals in the dining room or fix their own meals."

Mike Ryan, a six-year resident of Rippling River, thinks the two and one-half meals a day he purchases for $175 a month are inadequate.

"THAT'S NOT enough food," Ryan said. "Not for me, anyway. I pay $175 a month for food service and I feel I'm not getting enough."

Ryan said he knows of only "two or three" residents who are regularly able to prepare their own meals. Ryan finds the noise and disorder of the remodeling a bit disconcerting.

"It's noisy, and inconvenient sometimes walking around, since I'm on crutches," Ryan said. "I don't really care for the remodeling because it will limit living space. I like it better the way it is.

"Quite a few of us are unhappy with it, but they feel they can't do much about it."

Mrs. Ethel Costagliola, another resident, said she has given up complaining.

"I don't bother complaining any more because it seems I'm the only one speaking up," she said. "The housing authority constantly repeats that they will take care of us, but our fear has always been that the kind of care they could give us is not what we need.

"It's possible we will get some volunteer help from the community. You have to go on faith when you don't have any alternatives."

Moore pointed out that a number of improvements will be made in general living conditions for residents as part of the remodeling. These include reconstruction of the original, steep and unsafe wheelchair ramps, installation of a fire sprinkler system, and placement of "panic" buttons in each bathroom and bedroom to allow residents to summon help.

"We're correcting a drainage problem which caused rainwater to collect, and we're adding an extension onto the kitchen pantry to increase our storage capacity," Moore said. "We're replacing some of the ramps so tenants don't have to go outside in the rain to get from building to building."

The swimming pool — a remnant of the days when the facility was a resort — will be decommissioned since "we couldn't identify a permanent source of funding," Moore said.

"It cost us about $8,000 a year to run the pool. Relatively few people used it, so we're going to break the bottom, to allow drainage, and backfill it."

Other improvements include new flooring in some of the housing units where leaks have caused rot, and replacement of flooring in the kitchen for sanitary reasons. Individual thermostats will be installed to regulate the steam heating units now controlled by difficult-to-reach valves, Moore said.

The housing authority will recruit and hire a new manager to replace Brenda Thomas, who was recently transferred to manage housing authority family units in Salinas. Oversight of the project and residents is now shared by the van driver, who is there mornings and nights; the construction inspector, who is there during working hours; and an agency manager, who is there in the afternoons, Moore indicated.

WORKMEN frame up doors, windows, and walls in a $2 million remodeling project designed to convert Rippling River into a facility for handicapped persons who are better able to care for themselves.

WHEELCHAIR ramps will be refurbished to provide handicapped residents of Rippling River with more gentle slopes. (Robert Miskimon photos).

CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL — FEBRUARY 1982

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The Carmel Girls' Basketball team is one final game away from the O'Shaughnessy Play-Offs. They played Gonzales on Thurs. Feb. 11, then one week later (Feb. 18) the Padres battled Hollister High School, who is currently tied with Carmel for second place.

When asked to describe the team, Coach Chad Lincoln replied with one word: "Sporatic. That means off and on; sometimes we'll have good offense, sometimes we won't. Our defense is the more consistent of the two."

The Padres' shooting percentage was weak this season. But in taking 70 to 80 shots per game they managed to run up the score in most of their games.

"We never lack intensity," added Coach Lincoln, "but too often we lack the points that go along with intensity."

Altogether the girls have had a good season and are hoping to continue into the regional playoffs.

Padre Sports Schedule

NEW SPORTS

Padre fans, be aware of the new sports coming up!

The boys' baseball team has already started practicing for the exciting season ahead. The team is coached by Jim Helgason.

The boys also have a tennis team lead by Dave Channey, who also coached the girls' tennis team.

For the girls, softball has begun, coached by Gary Childs.

The boys' swim team had its first home meet Feb. 19 against Soquel. The team is trained by Jim Agan.

The new track season will get underway some time next week. It will be coached by Bob Walthour and Bob Brooks.

Also, the Carmel golf team will tee-off a new season, coacked by Buzz Rainer.

Carmel is ready to race, swim, hit, stroke, and backhand into all the new spring sports.

Basketball team ends season

BOYS' BASKETBALL

The Carmel High Boys' Basketball Team now winds down another exciting season. The Padres are now 5-5 with two games left to play in league. The team is tied with Gonzales for third place, and faced their opponents at home on Thurs. Feb. 11.

Starting guard Ken Hall commented, "It's been a strange season. Every team was strong, so we couldn't take any game lightly. On any given day any team had a chance to win. We just didn't have the consistency we needed to win all our games."

The team is 8-11 overall, and will play their last game of the season against RLS at home. Starting times of the games are 5:00-6:30-8:30.

CARMEL DANCERS

Marikay LaValley is molding the Carmel dancers for a dance performance with Seaside to be performed at Sunset Center on May 29 at 8 p.m.

The dances will be choreographed by the students and faculty of Carmel and Seaside. They will perform a medley of dances from the '20's to the '80's, some jazz, a May Day dance, and some ultra-modern dances.

"Last year's show was extremely successful," commented Mrs. LaValley. "The show is a very positive exchange with the students at Seaside in a non-competitive way. It is also nice that Seaside has male dancers, since Carmel has none."

Carmel will also perform at the Middle School and other schools in the area.

FIELD HOCKEY

Carmel Field Hockey coach Vicki Schutzler said, "We're all through with our season, and we ended up 0-10. Out of the ten games we played, we only had the regulation number of players for three games.

"The younger players who were coming out for the first time showed tremendous improvement and played very aggressively. Even when the chips were down, the team never stopped trying."

Next year the Carmel Field Hockey Team will be experienced and ready to win!

SOCCER

The Carmel High soccer team ended the season with a 7-5 record. "The way it looks we should end up in third place," said Carmel Coach Dick Zury.

Coach Zury praised the high scoring ability of Carlos Zarate, the fine mid-field play of Steve Prince and John Rudolph, and the fine defense of the goaly Chris Nelson.

Zury also added that all-league awards and honorable mentions will be announced at the banquet which is coming up in the near future.

The whole team played an aggressive season, and kept the Padre spirit flowing. We can look forward to a successful team next year.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRINCIPAL

During this "month of love," the following comes to mind:

Love all God's creation, the whole and every grain of sand in it. Love every leaf, every ray of God's light. Love the animals, love the plants, love everything. If you love everything, you will perceive the divine mystery in things. Once you perceive it, you begin to comprehend it better every day. And you will come at last to love the whole world with an all-embracing love.

Carmel High School

CV High School

Carmel Valley High School has had a great year so far. We have an excellent staff and a collection of some truly fine students, who have done much to make our school a success. Of the 62 students who have attended our school this year, 11 have already completed their course work, passed their competency exams and have graduated.

Our school is now in its second semester and looking forward to new programs in vocational education and field trips and possibly computer education. The students and FOCUS have worked to supply the funds necessary for building these new programs.

Our goal is to create an educational experience which will augment and remediate academic needs, foster and support vocational exploration and provide that kind of environment which will encourage physical, social, intellectual and emotional growth.

This sounds like a pretty big order. And it is not something easily bought at the local education store or something that can be tacked together by a handful of well-meaning teachers. It is the combined efforts of teachers, students, administrators, parents and the community that make an alternative high school work.

Carmel Valley High School is working, and we are all growing and learning in the process. Competency test scores are high, and our graduates are generally doing very well in jobs; community colleges and technical schools.

The one ingredient we have at Carmel Valley High School which seems to cut through all that we do and enhances and strengthens all that we teach, is sincere caring for each other. This genuine concern creates an environment for true growth and better understanding. It also places a warm heart in and among buildings and books, to be a source of energy for us all.

Council considers planning contract

be at every meeting. I would propose eliminating the environmental planner and cutting $8,000 from the $14,000."

Mrs. Arnold said the General Plan Steering Committee — which consists of herself and Councilman Mike Brown, plus planning commission members Jim Wright and John Logan — ought to review the contract revisions before they are approved.

"I would not vote for this contract unless I knew the steering committee approved of it," she said.

"You ought to know what the steering committee thinks. You're on it," remarked Councilman Howard Brunn. "I would like to know what the General Plan Committee thinks about this. Do they need this, or are they just being given it? Let's not sabotage the process by sending it back to the steering committee."

On a motion by Mrs. Arnold at the Nov. 19 joint general plan meeting in Sunset Center, Councilman Brunn was removed as a member of the steering committee while he was in Europe. He was replaced by Councilman Mike Brown. Council members Arnold, Brown and Frank Lloyd voted for the removal. Mayor Barney Laiolo voted no.

The council discussed but decided against inclusion of a public opinion poll on council salaries in a questionnaire to be mailed to registered voters as part of the general plan revision.

The suggestion was made originally by Councilman Howard Brunn, who raised the issue again at the Tuesday session.

"Some people don't want this to go on the ballot because they know what the answer will be," Brunn said, in a thinly-disguised reference to Councilwoman Arnold. "I feel we're doing something blatantly against what the people want us to do."

Brunn recalled that voters expressed a preference against council salaries in 1974, but the city council by a 3-2 vote approved salaries for itself in 1979. Council members' salaries are $150 per month; the mayor's salary is $200.

Mayor Laiolo does not collect his salary and Councilman Brunn donates his to charities.

dental and optical insurance coverage and are reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses related to city business.

Councilman Brunn said he has no quarrel with the insurance and expense reimbursement to council members.

"The altruism of Mr. Brunn is admirable, indeed," said Mrs. Arnold. "I request that if your quest for supervisor is successful, you will refuse that salary."

The council backed off from inclusion of the question when General Plan Committee members said a majority opposed the move.

Advisory committee revises its questions

THE GENERAL Plan Advisory Committee has revised questions it wants to ask Carmel residents about what direction the village should take.

Specifically, the committee has tried to phrase the questions so they are not rhetorical — queries for which the answers are already known.

For example, instead of asking registered voters in Carmel: "Should the city seek a solution to the traffic congestion on Highgway 1?" the committee thinks the question should be phrased:

"To solve the traffic congestion on Highway 1, should Highway 1 be widened? Should Hatton Canyon Road be built? Leave as is?"

And the committee has reduced the number of questions from 12 to 10. The entire list of questions will be reviewed by the city council before it adds questions of its own and decides the final format of the questionnaire to be mailed to residents.

The results of the survey are to be used by the committee and by Earth Metrics, the Burlingame consulting firm under contract to revise the general plan. The committee decided at its Feb. 18 meeting to ask respondents to state where they live and whether they are retired.

There were only three committee members and one alternate member present at last week's meeting. Regular members included Jane Mayer, Jean Grace, and Dorothy Lillard. Alternate member Alan Williams was also present.

Two vacancies on the committee — created by the death of Les Gross and the resignation of John Eatherton — were to be filled by city council appointment.

Here is the final form of the questions agreed upon by the committee:

- Do you approve or disapprove of preferential parking for residents in the residential areas?
- Should the city restrict or not restrict tourist-oriented businesses?
- Do you approve or disapprove of the city subsidizing residentially-oriented businesses?
- Do you favor or not the annexation of areas adjacent to Carmel-by-the-Sea?
- Do you approve or disapprove of the existing non-conforming uses within the residential district?
- Should the city explore means of establishing housing for low-income residents?
- Do you think the city should acquire more property for open space?
- To solve the traffic congestion on Highway 1, should Highway 1 be widened, should Hatton Canyon be built, (or) leave as is?
- Do you believe that public transportation facilities in Carmel are adequate?
- Who should provide parking: business, city, or none of the above?

Bus service expands in Carmel, CV

Monterey-Salinas Transit has expanded bus service on two Carmel lines.

Line Four-Carmel Valley, and Line Five-Carmel Point, will provide service between downtown Monterey and the Carmel business district every half hour weekdays before 9 a.m. and between 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. The buses will serve Monterey every half hour all day on Saturdays.

Previously, the lines operated once per hour.

The changes will go into effect Saturday, Feb. 27.

For complete schedule information, call MST at 899-2555.

Father Farrell's wisdom

FORMOSA OR TAIWAN, REPUBLIC OF CHINA
De Senectuto — On Old Age

A group of 30 Monterey County citizens are going to the Republic of China for a good will and study mission. We met at a brunch with the Honorable H.P. Chung, the former Counsul General, now called Director, to receive our visas for the approximately three-week tour beginning February 17th.

Mr. Chung told me he had arranged a special meeting for us at the mayor's office in Tainan, the Sister City of Monterey. He also arranged for me to visit the prison. "We are proud of our prison system — it allows the prisoners to work, earn money and make restitution to those they have injured. It's like a family. Our crime rate is very low because our family tradition is so strong, just as it was in old China before Communism.

"You know you will receive a great welcome in Taiwan because everyone has a great respect for old age. With your age and your grey beard, you could even be a beggar and everyone will honor you."

I conceded that this would be a happy experience but I thought I would not venture to put the beggar role to the test. When I told him that by Chinese reckoning I was 75, going on 76, he said "Oh, that is very old indeed." I told him that on my first day in Taiwan, I intended to go to a tailor and purchase a chiang sam.

"With a chiang sam and your grey beard, you will be venerated as an ancient scholar."

We shall see. Marcus Tullius Cicero, 60 B.C., observed, "Give me a young man in whom there is something of the old and an old man with something of the young, guided so, a man may grow old in body but never in mind."

Robert Louis Stevenson School students receive B of A awards

John Bradley and James Potochny, students at Robert Louis Stevenson School, have been selected to compete in Bank of America's 1982 Achievement Awards Program. Bradley, a senior from Carmel, was picked for competition in mathematics and science and Potochny, a senior from Monterey was chosen for the fine arts field.

In addition, 12 other seniors will receive Certificates of Merit from the Bank of America for superior performance in specific areas of study as listed:

Art: Timothy Powell, Pebble Beach.

Drama: Kimberly Taylor, Carmel; Ronald Sheffield, Salinas.

Music: Colin Cooper, Pebble Beach; Teresa Walker, Carmel.

English: Mark Modrall, Carmel.

Foreign Languages: Erin McFadden, Pebble Beach; Christina Meckel, Carmel.

Social Studies: Steven Zahm, Pebble Beach.

Laboratory Science: David Ligon, Carson City, NV.

Mathematics: Robert Graham, Saudi Arabia.

Business: Tyrone Lee, Republic of Singapore.

Each of the top-ranking seniors will receive a personally engraved plaque and will compete in March with students from neighboring high schools. Judging at this regional event will be conducted by a panel of educators and business and community leaders, and will be based on written compositions, group discussions, general scholarship and civic and school activities.

First place winners of the event will then advance to the regional finals. Second, third and fourth place zone winners in each field receive $100, $75 and $50 respectively.

In the finals, zone winners will compete for top prizes of $2,000, $1,000 and $750. All other finalists receive $500.

Timothy Powell gets BYU scholarship

Timothy Adrian Powell, son of Mr. & Mrs. Cloan Powell of Pebble Beach, and a senior at Robert Louis Stevenson School, has been selected by the Undergraduate Scholarship Committee of the Brigham Young University to receive their Presidential Scholar Award. This award acknowledges superior academic achievement and recognizes unusual promise for continued scholastic excellence at BYU.

In addition to this scholarship award, the Faculty Awards Committee at RLS has chosen Tim to receive the Bank of America Achievement Award in Art. Tim is a gifted artist as well as an accomplished clarinetist and pianist. Also, he has recently completed four computer programs which have been purchased by Texas Instruments to be part of their line of computer programs for home use.

Deaths

Nicholas Roosevelt

Nicholas Roosevelt, a resident of Big Sur since 1946, died Feb. 16 at Community Hospital. He was 88.

Roosevelt, who served three presidents, was a journalist and assistant to the publisher of the New York Times when he made his home permanently on Partington Ridge.

A close cousin of President Theodore Roosevelt, he authored many books including Theodore Roosevelt: The Man As I Knew Him, a memoir; his autobiography, A Front Row Seat; and also the book Conservation: Now or Never.

Nicholas Roosevelt was a great advocate of saving natural scenic resources. He served on the Monterey Coast Highway Study Commission and later became chairman of the Planning Commission's Big Sur Advisory Committee. Roosevelt also served on the California State Recreation Commission of which he was later vice chairman.

Nicholas Roosevelt studied at Harvard; he served as an infantry captain from 1917-19 and joined the editorial staff of the New York Tribune in 1921 as an editorial writer and special correspondent. In 1925 he was sent to the Far East for the New York Times. While there, he gathered material for two books, The Philippines, A Treasure and a Problem, published in 1926 and The Restless Pacific in 1928. Mr. Roosevelt also authored American and England, The Townsend Plan and A New Birth of Freedom.

Roosevelt served a short time as vice governor of the Philippines and later was appointed minister to Hungary. At 37, he was one of the youngest ministers in the foreign service at the time.

In 1939, Roosevelt became deputy director of the Office of War Information. He left in 1944 to become assistant to New York Times publisher Arthur Hays Sulzberger.

He and his wife, the former Tirzah Maris Gates, built their home on four acres on Partington Ridge and called it Point of Whales because they heard and saw gray whales below the headland.

Roosevelt was a gourmet cook and wrote two cook books. He was a member of the Century Club in New York City, the Metropolitan Club in Washington, D.C., the Harvard Club and the Save the Redwoods League.

Mrs. Roosevelt died in 1961. Nicholas Roosevelt is survived by nieces and nephews: Mrs. Robert Johns Bulkley, Jr., Margot Warner, Caleb Warner, J. West Rooevelt and Oliver Wolcott Roosevelt.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested memorial contributions to the Nicholas Roosevelt Fund, Department of Communications, Stanford University.

Mary Lucas

Mary Grimes Lucas, a Carmel Valley resident of many years, died Feb. 10 from injuries sustained in an automobile accident in West Germany. She was 53.

Mrs. Lucas was born in Monterey, Nov. 16, 1928, a member of the Grimes family, who were early settlers in Big Sur.

She graduated from Monterey High School and the University of California, Berkeley.

Mrs. Lucas was a kennel operator and was on a dog buying trip at the time of her death.

Survivors include a daughter, Karin Lucas of San Jose; son, Bernd-Ronald Lucas of Los Angeles; and two sisters, Mrs. Robert Vita of Mt. Shasta and Grimes Ranch, Big Sur, and Mrs. Duncan Frew of Alamo.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the American Red Cross or the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Dorothy Croad

Dorothy Leamon Croad, a Carmel resident since 1964, died Feb. 17 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital following a period of declining health. She was 79.

Mrs. Croad was born May 3, 1902, in Exira, Iowa. She was a graduate of Chico State College. She was active in Peninsula civic and youth organizations when her husband, Russell, was superintendent of Monterey schools from 1935-41.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Dorothy Gard of Los Altos; sister, Mrs. Ruth Walker of Sacramento; two brothers, Charles and Howard Leamon, both of Sacramento; and three grandchildren.

Private services were held at the El Estero Chapel of Mission Mortuary.

Helen Bletzer

Helen F. Bletzer, a Carmel Valley resident for the past 11 years, died Feb. 18 at Community Hospital after a lengthy illness. She was 90.

Mrs. Bletzer was born Aug. 1, 1981 in Massillon, Ohio. She moved from Hillsborough to Carmel Valley in 1971.

She is survived by a daughter, Nancy J. Bletzer, and a brother, John Carpenter, both of Carmel Valley.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Selma Maschke

Selma K. Maschke, a Carmel resident for the past 15 years, died Feb. 18, 1982. She was 88.

Mrs. Maschke was born April 28, 1893 in Cleveland, Ohio. She was the widow of Dr. Alfred S. Maschke, who had been a world famous diagnostician. Mrs. Maschke in her younger years had been a champion golfer and concert pianist.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Monterey County Symphony Association.

Business association will host candidates

On Thursday, March 4, the Carmel Business Association will offer one of the first opportunities for local residents to meet and listen to candidates for mayor and the City Council.

The 8 a.m. meeting at La Playa Hotel is open to everyone, whether members of the CBA or not. A Continental breakfast is served; reservations are not required.

Sanitary district story correction

In the Feb. 4 edition of the Pine Cone/Outlook, it was reported that the Coastal Commission had required new pipes for the Carmel Sanitary District Water Reclamation Project. It was further reported that the new pipes would mean an additional $800,000 in costs for the project.

The Coastal Commission did not require new pipes. However, under the project permit, the commission did require that the district change building sites.

Since the building sites were changed, the piping system also had to be changed, which added to the costs, said Manager Michael Zambory.

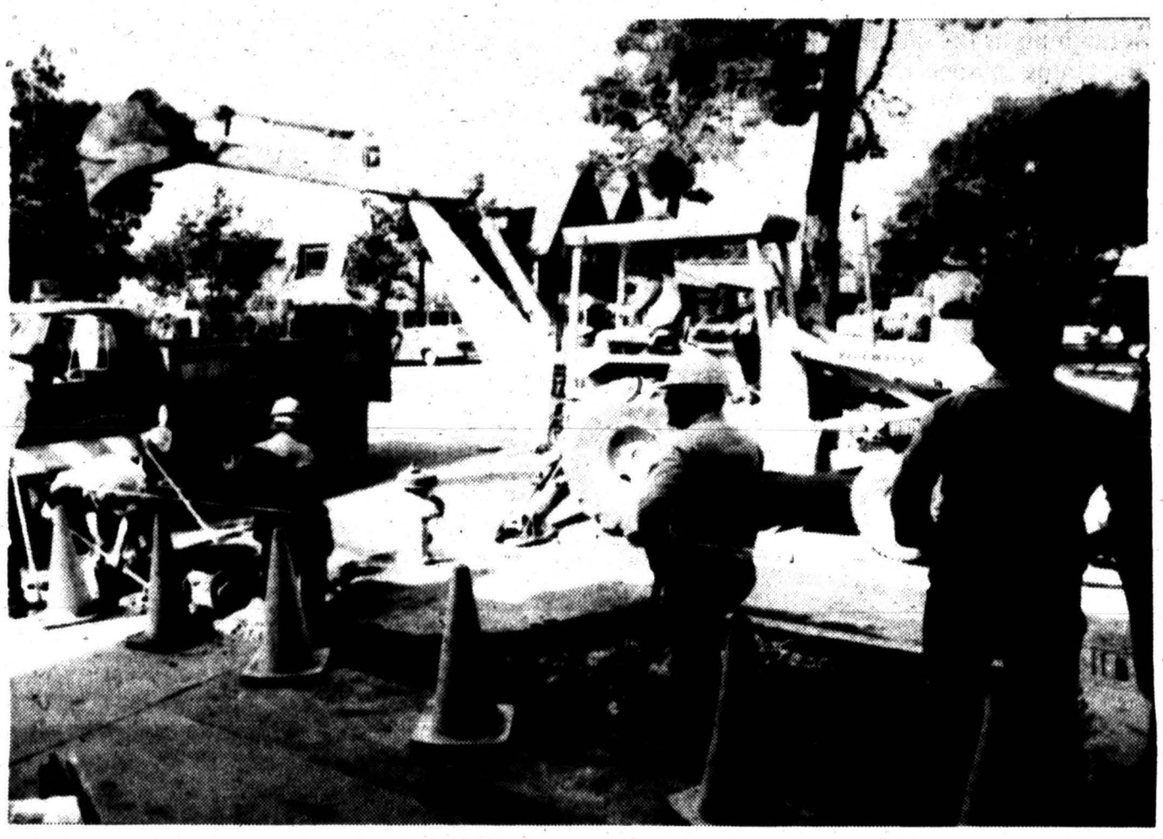
A BROKEN gas line created some confusion at the southeast corner of the intersection of Ocean and Junipero Monday, Feb. 22 at about 10:30 a.m. PG&E customer service supervisor Wayne McNown said the two-inch gas line was broken by heavy equipment operated by a private contractor — Underground Construction Co. McNown said seven PG&E crew members spent about two hours fixing the leak. Three customers lost service until about 1:30 p.m., he added. City police, fire and forestry officials directed traffic and stood by while the main was repaired.



WHAT WAS originally a routine tree stump removal became very complicated over at the northeast corner of Ocean and Dolores. City forestry crews wanted to remove a tree stump, but found that the utilities were too close to the sidewalk for safe removal. PG&E and Cal-Am Water Co. workers had to be called in Feb. 16 to move the utility lines before city workers could complete their task. A tree at the intersection had died and was removed earlier. There was also construction work along Junipero between Sixth and Seventh. Pacific Telephone installed new lines to increase its capacity in the area. Most of the work there was completed by Feb. 22.

Water is theme at MPC lecture series "Knowledge Update"

Monterey Peninsula Water District manager Bruce Buel will be the featured speaker at the Monterey Peninsula College Knowledge Update lecture on Friday, Feb. 26 at 1:30 p.m. in Room A-9, on campus, 980 Fremont St., Monterey.

Completing the series theme on Peninsula water impact, Buel will discuss the area's water management programs with views to the future. The talk closely follows Buel's annual report to the board of directors, and will attempt to clarify many of his findings.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, phone MPC Community Education, 646-4055.

IN CARMEL, THERE ARE 90% MORE SMILES THAN FROWNS.

When you read a paper these days or listen to the radio or watch the news on television, it sometimes seems that the entire country is up to its ears in problems.

And the Carmel area is not immune to them.

But the above response to The National Bank of Carmel community survey reminds us that all of us on the peninsula have a lot to be happy about.

Like clean air. Nice weather (although it's been known to blow a bit during the Crosby). Friendly people. Fine restaurants. And as another resident wrote so poetically, "unparalleled scenic grandeur embracing oceans, forests, valleys and mountains."

But we can't ignore those frowns.

And according to many of you who wrote to us, those frowns are caused by too much growth, traffic, rising burglary rates, overbuilding and other concerns you perceive as threats to the quality of life here.

We'll be addressing some of these controversial issues in this paper in the months to come.

Because the way we look at it, the better we all understand the reasons for the frowns, the better our chances are to turn them into smiles.

GIRL SEATED I, one of the collection of black and white drawings by German-born artist Hans Hofmann, will be exhibited beginning Tuesday, March 2 at the Marjorie Evans Gallery, Sunset Center, Carmel. The one-man show will also include self-portrait drawings from 1935. Virtually all the works are being shown for the first time.

One-man show:

Drawings by Hoffmann on exhibit in Carmel

A one-man show of drawings by Hans Hoffmann will open Tuesday, March 2 at the Marjorie Evans Gallery at Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel.

German-born Hans Hofmann, a refuguee from Nazism, settled permanently in the United States in 1932. A short time thereafter he became a force in the art of his adopted country. He was a teacher of broad influence as well as a painter of exceptional gifts.

As a painter, Hofmann built his reputation upon the extraordinary verve and bright color of his abstractions. Hofmann's mature style owed much both to representation and to the wealth of drawings he produced in black and white.

Hofmann's art was truly abstract in that it had its source in his observation of and reaction to the everyday world. He was preoccupied with landscape and figures registered as feeling. The formal properties of his subjects were secondary to Hofmann's concern with the sensation they evoked in him — the sensation he wished to communicated to the viewer.

Given this expressive aim, Hofmann developed a style based upon notation, an element of drawing. Nothing in art is as personal and immediate as drawing. It is these qualities of personality and immediacy that Hofmann exploited.

Hofmann's style as a colorist rests upon the calligraphy revealed in his black and white drawings. The vitality of his paintings, their spatial energy and tonal masses projected as hues, their relationship to an observed world derive from solutions to problems of description and expression he attached consistently in his black and white drawings.

The present exhibit presents these remarkable black and white drawings from all phases of Hofmann's career including some self-portraits of 1935. Virtually all of this material will be shown for the first time.

The Majorie Evans Gallery is open weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For further information, phone 624-3996.

Choir offers free concert

The A Cappella Choir of the University of California, Los Angeles will present a free concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 26 at the Church of the Wayfarer, Lincoln and Seventh, Carmel.

Currently on its annual tour, the 50-voice ensemble is well known in Southern California and has toured extensively throughout the United States and Europe.

Directed by William Hatcher, the A Cappella Choir will present selections ranging from Renaissance to contemporary motets and choruses. Featured will be works by Cipriano de Rore, Mendelssohn, Faure and Haydn. Gloria by Argento, Let's Touch the Sky by Talma and traditional American folk songs such as Shendanoah and Poor Wayfarin' Stranger, will be performed.

Director Hatcher is lecturer in music at UCLA. He also taught at California State University, Los Angeles and at Pasadena City College. Hatcher has been director of music at Hollywood Presbyterian Church and at First Congregational Church of Los Angeles. A popular clinician, and festival choir director, he has directed the Los Angeles Bach Festival, the Pasadena Chorale and has served as guest conductor of the Seattle Symphony and the Pasadena Symphony. He is presently serving as president of the Southern Californa chapter of the American Choral Directors Association.

Blaise Bryski, accompanist, is a graduate of the Universtiy of Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and has appeared as soloist with the Cincinnati Symphony. A frequent concert performer in the Los Angeles area, Bryski has been staff accompanist for the UCLA Department of Music since 1978.

The public is invited to the free concert.

THE 50-VOICE A Cappella Choir of the University of California, Los Angeles, under the direction of William Hatcher, will present a free concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 26 at the Church of the Wayfarer, Lincoln and Seventh, Carmel. The ensemble will perform a variety of selections ranging from Renaissance to contemporary motets and choruses.

Guitar Quartet to appear at Sunst Center

THE SAN FRANCISCO GUITAR QUARTET will perform music from the Renaissance to modern day at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 27 in the Sunset Theater, Carmel. Tickets are $7.50 general, $6.50 for seniors and $4.50 for students 12 and under.

The San Francisco Guitar Quartet will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 27 in Sunset Theater, Carmel.

The guitar quartet offers a new extension of the incredibly versatile repertoire for this ever-flexible, ever-changing instrument. If the solo guitar has ever seemed too intimate, too introspective, the quartet ensemble of four guitars compensates for each of these detractions. The quartet can be intimate, but it is also outgoing and robust. The quartet can be introspective, as all great art must be from time to time, but it is also dramatic and expressive. It may seem dreamy and eternally peaceful at one moment, but in the next it has the capacity to raise an audience to its feet with the dynamism and sheer excitement of massed sound. What six strings can do, twenty-four can do better and more forcefully!

Hailing from San Francisco and the Bay Area, the members of the San Francisco Guitar Quartet are equally talented young artists James Colgan, Timothy Fox, Geoffrey Stewart and Lynn Zemlin.

Their repertore is varied. All the members of the San Francisco Guitar Quartet have engaged in extensive research to produce a surprising library of works written especially or transcribed for the quartet. Their repertoire ranges from Renaissance to modern day. An important part of the program is the use of unique instruments such as the requinto (a smaller, higher-tuned guitar-like instrument) and an eight-string guitar from the present day. Their repertoire and unusual instruments make the Guitar Quartet a new and exciting addition to the ensemble world of today.

A native of Kentucky, James Colgan has been playing the guitar since the age of 12. An active musicologist as well as a performer, he has published numerous articles and performance editions of rarely heard 18th century guitar music.

Timothy Fox hails from Houston, Tex. He has played guitar since his early years and is well known in the Bay Area for his active research into rarely-heard guitar literature.

Geoffrey Stewart, who began studying guitar at 13, also plays the contrabass and French horn. He is widely known throughout California as a versatile performer.

Lynn Zemlin, from Minneapolis, Minn., began her artistic career as a ballet dancer. Guitar is now her major field and she is deeply involved in helping to create the new repertoire for the Quartet.

Tickets to the concert are $7.50 general, $6.50 for seniors and $4.50 for students 12 and under. They are available in Carmel at Bartlett Music, Dolores near Fifth; and Do Re Mi Music in The Barnyard; and at The Record Cove, Alvarado Street, Monterey.

Dean-Brando double feature offered

Movie idols James Dean and Marlon Brando are the stars in a double feature to be shown on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 26 and 27 by the Monterey Peninsula Film Society. In addition, Rashomon, a now-classic Japanese film, will screen Wednesday, March 3.

One of the definitive works of the 1950s, Rebel Without a Cause stars the late James Dean as a teenager dissatisfied with his world. Considered by many critics to be the greatest film on adolescence, Rebel boasts first-rate supporting performances by Natalie Wood and Sal Mineo.

Following an intermission with refreshments, the Academy Award-winning film, On the Waterfront, will be shown.

Directed by Elia Kazan, the 1954 film is a masterful telling of union strife among the workers on the New York waterfront.

Marlon Brando is overpowering as a confused dock worker torn by his inability to reconcile the emotional trauma of love, hate and death.

The film features towering performances by Karl Malden, Lee J. Cobb, Eva Marie Saint and Rob Steiger.

Rashomon, the winner of the 1950 Academy Award for Best Foreign Film, will be shown Wednesday, March 3. Set in the Middle Ages, the film probes the quicksilver nature of truth and subjective reality.

All sceenings begin at 8:15 p.m. in the Morse Auditorium, Monterey Institute of International Studies, 440 Van Buren, Monterey. Tickets are $3 general and $2.50 for students and society members.

For further information, phone 659-4795.

Film review:

A dinner conversation

By LISA JENSEN

Andre Gregory is a New York producer-director (best known for starting the experimental theater group, The Manhattan Project) who a few years ago dropped out of the theatrical community to travel around the world searching for spiritual fulfillment. Wallace Shawn, his longtime friend, is a modestly successful playwright and part-time actor barely scraping by in New York City, near the East Side neighborhood where he grew up.

When Andre first told his friend about his mystical adventures halfway around the globe, Wally sensed the raw material of a great story, and together, they sat down to write it. After many false starts, they came up with the ideal (and the most deceptively simple) narrative format: straight from the horse's mouth.

The result is My Dinner With Andre, an irresistible film in which Wally and Andre play themselves, two old friends meeting at a posh New York restaurant for dinner and a good long talk. Directed with a subtle undercurrent of wry humor and scripted and performed with lively precision by the two principals, My Dinner With Andre merrily turns the "laws" of cinema inside-out. The action is internal throughout, yet the urgency and excitement is undeniable.

Andre does most of the talking, describing his flight from what he considers a superficial life in the arts to India, Tibet, a Polish forest and the Findhorn community in Scotland in search of moral and spiritual reawakening. Andre believes that a conspiracy of technology, media and our addition to the "dangerous tranquility" of comfort is turning us into a race of anesthetized robots, capable of interacting with each other only "weirdly and indirectly."

Andre speaks with the hypnotic fervor of someone convinced that moral apocalypse is just around the corner. Yet, as mesmerizing as Andre is, Wally maintains an air of affectionate skepticism that keeps his friend and the film solidly rooted in terra firma. Wally is hobbit-like in his fondness for creature comforts and simple pleasures like food, books, electric blankets and paying his bills on time. And he reacts to (and ultimately debates with) Andre's metaphysical gloom with a mixture of awe and good-natured irritation.

Although it takes place in more-or-less "real time" and consists almost entirely of "talking heads," My Dinner With Andre is as exhilarating as those late-night bull sessions we've all had with best friends in the back booth of an all-night diner when the fate of the universe seemed to be at stake. The conversation glides with the quicksilver speed of ideas in motion, while the film gives a sly peek into the ways we communicate, verbally and otherwise.

But the communication isn't limited to the screen. The level of intensity on which you experience the film depends entirely on what you contribute to the flow of ideas on screen. My Dinner With Andre forces you to participate in a basic and entertaining way. For best results, see it with someone you love to talk to.

What's playing at the movies

A Grand Masterpiece: Back by demand. In Russian with subtitles. Directed by Nikita Mikhalkov. At the Dream Theatre.

The Boogens: A horror movie about tentacled monsters living deep below the earth in a caved-in mine — until the mines are reopened and the deadly beasts released upon an unsuspecting community. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

The Border: Jack Nicholson stars as a hero bucking bureaucratic corruption in this film about the border patrol along the Mexican border. Harvey Keitel, Valerie Perrine and Warren Oates also star. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Cannery Row: Filmed on the Monterey Peninsula, this film recreates the boisterous Monterey waterfront of the 1940s, a haven for derelicts, dreamers and nonconformists who triumph over harsh realities with their compassion and good humor intact. A touching love affair between Doc (Nick Nolte), an enigmatic and eccentric marine biologist and Suzy (Debra Winger), a pretty young drifter determined to survive, begins. Audra Lindley stars as the shrewd, earthy madame. Narrated by John Huston. Rated R. At the Regency Theatre.

Chariots of Fire: A wealthy Jewish boy becomes a star runner and a Scots missionary sprints for the glory of God. The two men, driven in different ways, lead England to gold medals and glory in the 1924 Olympics in Paris. Beautifully blended color photography. Starring Ben Cross, Ian Charleson, and Alice Krige. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough.

My Dinner With Andre: Director Andre Gregory and playwright/actor Wallace Shawn play themselves in this thoughtful and thought-provoking film about two vastly different people. Years after their last meeting, the two men have dinner together and share their reactions to totally separate experiences. Both men learn from this exchange. At the Dream Theatre.

On Golden Pond: Katharine Hepburn and Henry Fonda offer a story of a couple still passionately in love after 48 years. Jane Fonda plays their daughter. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre.

Ragtime: The E.L. Doctorow novel about three remarkable families in America at the turn of the century. Stars James Cagney, Debbie Allen, Brad Dourif, Moses Gunn, Norman Mailer and Bessie Love. Directed by Milos Forman. Rated PG. At the Hill Theatre.

Raiders of the Lost Ark: Written by George Lucas and directed by Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford plays Indiana Jones, an archeologist and adventurer who somehow survives while his adversaries are impaled on steel spikes, poison darted, dispatched by an airplane propeller and even melted while competing to find the Ark of the Covenant. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Reds: Produced, directed by and starring Warren Beatty, who plays John Reed, the rabble-rousing American reporter. Diane Keaton stars as Louise Bryant, advocate of free love. Encompasses the events of World War I and the Russian Revolution. With Maureen Stapleton, Jack Nicholson, Paul Sorvino, Jerzy Kosinski and Oleg Kerensky. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Without Warning: Alien terror is here on earth. Starring Jack Palance and Martin Landau. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Backgammon

Refusing a double

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You are White, on roll in the diagrammed position. Should you double? If you do double, should Black accept?

In a word, Yes and No.

Yes, you should double because the odds are in your favor to win from this position; and No, Black should refuse the double because the odds are much worse than 3 to 1 against him.

Black needs two very good rolls or a high doublet (double three or better) to pull the game out of the fire. If nothing of this sort happens, White is sure to win. If White rolls any doublet except double one, Black must roll specifically double six at his next turn to win.

It's tedious to calculate Black's exact chance to win from a position of this kind, but you can simplify it. Black must get off in two rolls, and the odds against him are substantially worse than 3 to 1 if he has four or more men on the 5-point or the 6-point.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send $1 plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

Festivals from around the world

By RICHARD TYLER

THERE ARE MANY interesting festivals taking place in all parts of the world. I thought this one in Hong Kong was of particular interest not only because of its variety and caliber but because some of the performers are being considered for appearances at Sunset Center.

Here, then, is the Hong Kong Arts Festival, 1981:

The Songmakers' Almanac brings together a distinguished musical quartet whose collaboration since 1977 has contributed much to the current revival of interest in Lieder presentations.

Robert and Clara and Johannes: This charming portrait of Clara Schumann in lieder and letters traces musically her relationships, first with Robert Schumann, later with Johannes Brahms and is richly illustrated by their songs.

Metropolis and Arcadia: In this program the quartet contrasts the joys (and horror!) of town life in London, New York, Paris and Vienna with the relief (or boredom!) of their surrounding countrysides seen through the songs of different composers — Britten, Debussey, Cole Porter, Richard Rodgers, Schubert, Walton and others.

Halle Orchestra: Considered one of Britain's principal orchestras, the Halle gives ten conceerts in this festival under the batons of Principal Conductor James Loughran and Guest Conductor, Maurice Handford.

Swedish Radio Symphony Orchestra: Michel Beroff as piano soloist in Liszt's Concerto No. 1 and Ravel's Piano Concerto in G Major and Boris Belkin as interpreter of both the Bruch and Tchaikovsky violin concertos join principal conductor Herbert Blomstedt in these Festival concerts.

Atarah's Band: Former principal flautist with the Royal Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra, Atarah Ben Tovim has become known to millions through her nationwide concert tours, radio and television appearances.

The Music Group of London: In addition to their performance as soloists in Beethoven's Triple Concert with the Halle Orchestra, they will present five chamber concerts in this festival.

Old Vic Company: Trelawny of the Wells: Pinero's comedy of theater company life is closely linked to the Old Vic Theater, which celebrates the centenary of its reopening in December 1980.

Old Vic Company: The Merchant of Venice: This production by Michael Meacham stars Timothy West as the moneylender.

Old Vic Theater: Off and On: Timothy West and Prunella Scales take a light-hearted, late night look at entertainers both off and on stage.

Louis Falco Dance Company: Dancer/choreographer Louis Falco's own dynamic intensity and extraordinary energy permeates his company of nine dancers, distinguishing them as one of today's finest collaborative dance ensembles. A much sought after choreographer, Falco has created works for the Boston Ballet, Ballet Rambert, Netherlands Dance Theater, Alvin Ailey Dance Company and the Australian Ballet.

The Midnight Follies Orchestra invites you to enter a world of mystery and intrigue, speakeasies and soft-shoe shuffles in their re-creation of the classic Big Band sounds of the 20s and 30s.

Don Burrows and George Golla are essentially an imporvisation duo, rather than a jazz combo. During their concerts these two versatle musicians switch styles from 16th century Bach-inspired numbers to Dixieland jazz and then to rock and reggae of today.

Pam Ayers: Described as a tonic in every sense and as a "poet without airs," Pam Ayers brings her own brand of humor to the Festival for two Chinese New Year concert performances.

Bob Berky has left audiences weak from laughter, but begging for more wherever he has performed. Through wordless mime and boisterous clowning, Berky's one-man show guarantees to appeal to audiences from nine to ninety!

Also programmed is music by Hong Kong composers; John Lill, piano recital; the Chinese Opera & Dance Drama Troupe; the Hong Kong Philharmonic Orchestra; Nigel Kennedy; Shuku Iwasaki duo recital; and the Brecht/Kipling revue, East is East. What a wonderfully varied and multifaceted program!

FESTIVALS ALL OVER the world are making decisions to enlarge their seating capacity or extend the schedule for performances. This is very heartening in a time of cultural difficulty and demonstrates that people are not willing to give up any possible enrichment to their society.

Author Vidal is guest at wine-tasting in Carmel

Gore Vidal, renowned author, politician and satirist, will speak at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 26 at the Monterey Peninsula College Theater, 980 Fremont, Monterey. His appearance is sponsored by the Monterey Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action.

Vidal will also be guest at a wine-tasting and autograph party at Thunderbird Book Shop, The Barnyard, Carmel from 4:30-6 p.m. the same day. The occasion will provide an opportunity to meet with the author in a more intimate setting.

One of the greatest contemporary American satirists, Vidal speaks his mind freely and offers penetrating insight liberally tinged with wit into American politics and mores. His personality and opinions have been subjects of controversy since he entered public life more than 30 years ago. Since then, he has developed an international reputation as an author of novels, plays, films and critical essays.

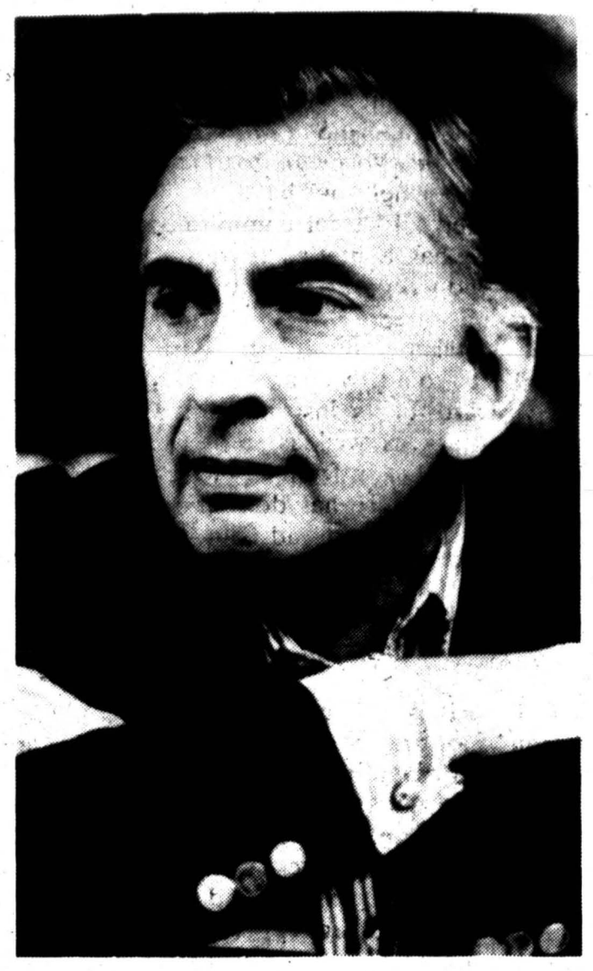
Generations of Vidal's distinguished family have provided leadership in the United States Senate as well as in a presidental cabinet. He was raised among prominent political and social figures in Washington, and was part of the influential Virginia aristocracy. For a time he shared the same stepfather as Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

Best-selling books by Gore Vidal include Julian, Myra Breckinridge, and his American historical trilogy, Burr, Washington, D.C. and 1876.

Founded in 1947, Americans for Democratic Action is a national political organization. For more than 30 years ADA has supported and shaped liberal political policies.

Admission to Vidal's lecture at Monterey Peninsula College is $5 general, $3 for seniors and students, and free to ADA members.

Admission to the Thunderbird party is $25 at the door. For further information, phone 372-0400.



GORE VIDAL, author, social commentator and politican, will speak on opposition to the Reagan budget, a halt to the military/nuclear buildup and other issues of national importance at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 26. Sponsored by Americans for Democratic Action, the lecture will be given in the Monterey Peninsula College Theater, 980 Fremont, Monterey. Tickets are $5 general and $3 for students and seniors. Vidal will also be guest of honor at a book signing party from 4:30-6 p.m. Friday at the Thunderbird Bookshop, The Barnyard, Carmel. Admission to this event is $25.

CV library will present musical film

The toe-tapping musical, You'll Never Get Rich, will fill the screen at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 26 in the Carmel Valley Library, 65 W. Carmel Valley Rd., Carmel Valley. The film is part of the Friday Night Film Series sponsored by the Friends of the Carmel Valley Library.

Directed by Sidney Landfield, the 1941 musical stars famed dancer Fred Astaire and Rita Hayworth. A sprightly comedy, You'll Never Get Rich tells the story of a theatrical producer who is drafted and still manages to produce his big show.

Admission is $1.50 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Proceeds are used to fulfill library needs not covered by the county budget.

For further information, phone 659-2377.

Music Corner

Pittel was 'splendid'

By LYN BRONSON

RETURNING FOR his second appearance with the Monterey County Symphony, saxophonist Harvey Pittel made a splendid effect at King Hall last Sunday evening as soloist in Albinoni's Concerto San Marco and Milhaud's Scaramouche for Saxophone and Orchestra.

You cannot help but have the greatest admiration for Mr. Pittel's deep and total commitment to his instrument. The saxophone has a limited literature and is associated in the public mind with jazz bands of the second quarter of the 20th century.

But Pittel is one of the elite saxophonists who have contributed to a new awareness of the instrument itself and to a new regard for the instrument as a vehicle for serious music, contemporary as well as transcriptions of works originally written for other instruments which sound quite beautiful on the saxophone. He has done much to make the saxophone respectable to concert audiences and has been responsible for the commissioning of a number of important contemporary works which have received distinguished performances by some of our major orchestras.

PITTEL WALKED on stage carrying a sopranino and a soprano sax for his performance of the Albioni San Marco Concerto, originally written for oboe. He alternated between the two instruments, switching at the end of each movement. With the sopranino sax sounding very much like an oboe, and the soprano less so, Pittel served us up a stylish account of the Albinoni. His tone was rich and smooth and always expressive. Although by no means a profound concerto, the Albinoni is full of grace and charm and Pittel played it like a master.

In his later appearance on the same program in the Milhaud Scaramouche for Saxophone and Orchestra, arranged by the composer from his original suite for two pianos, Pittel continued to make a fine impression with his jazzy, pulsating passages which were always precise rhythmically and achieved an astounding musical clarity.

In the Modere second movement, Pittel produced the most beautiful, lush cantabile, which was always exquisitely shaped and colored with expressive dynamics. The Brazileira last movement, with its fast samba ryhthms, was an exhilarating conclusion to this most satisfying work.

After an extended ovation, Pittel rewarded the audience with an encore, the Essay in the Form of a Waltz by Claude Benoit, which he prefaced with the remark that he hoped that the piece sounded effortless because it was in actuality excruciatingly difficult. It was, in fact, a remarkable work performed in a remarkable manner.

THE EVENING'S PROGRAM opened with a spirited performance of the Dance of the Furies and the Dance of the Blessed Spirits from Orfeo by Gluck. The beautiful orchestration of the composer was matched by the excellent playing of the orchestra and the skillful direction of Haymo Taeuber.

The mournful mood of the Dance of the Blessed Spirits was lovingly evoked by the orchestra's principal flutist, Ray Fabrizio, whose beautiful flute solo kept you wishing for more.

One of the major works on the program was the Haydn Symphony No. 104, known as the London. Although the opening was rather soft-toned and restrained, the first movement, allegro, was quite spirited and the sound of the orchestra was spacious and resonant. After the charming menuetto minuet, the spirited finale was very successful.

To round out the evening, Maestro Taueber presented the orchestra in Ravel's popular Rapsodie Espagnol, and never has the orchestra sounded better! Everything worked nicely; the strings were vibrant and they balanced well with the woodwinds, brass and percussion. The solos were excellent and Taeuber was in top form.

For a rousing finale, you couldn't ask for more.

Stringband music featured in Carmel concert

THE EXCITING SOUNDS of Michael, McCreesh and Campbell will be heard at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 3 at the Cherry Foundation, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel. Selected by the National Fine Arts Committee as the Official Ministrels of the XIII Olympics, this talented stringband will play traditional Irish and American music.

The sounds of traditional American and Irish stringband music will be performed by Michael, McCreeesh and Campbell at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 3 at the Cherry Foundation, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel.

The group produces a unique and powerful sound. Michael's hard-driving hammered dulcimer and guitar playing is complemented by the soulful fiddle work of Tom McCreesh and underpinned by the deep, rich sound of the acoustic bass and piano. Michael, McCreesh and Campbell are more than an instrumental unit. Their performances include stirring Appalachian mountain harmony singing, as well as timeless recitations done in the great Irish tradition. Delightful dance tunes from the rich traditions of the British Isles and the U.S. are also part of their repertory.

Former members of great string bands such as Bottle Hill, the Hotmud Family and Fennig's All-Stars, the trio has been together for four years. In that short period, they have compiled an impressive list of performances and media credits.

In 1978 they were commissioned by the National Endowment for the Arts to compose, perform and record the music for Molly's Not Dead, danced by the internationally acclaimed Pilobolus Dance Theater. Premiered at the American Dance Festival in 1978, Molly has been performed throughout the world to rave reviews. It was aired in Canada on the CBC and was viewed throughout the U.S. on the PBS series Dance in America.

The National Fine Arts Committee named Michael, McCreesh and Campbell the Official Minstrels of ths XIII Olympic Winter Games in 1979. This group, along with Jazzmobile, the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra and the Catilena Chamber Players, were chosen as "an exciting sampling of the performing arts in the United States." Michael, McCreesh and Campbell performed 14 concerts at the Olympic Games including the closing ceremonies.

Tickets are $5. They are available at ReCycled Records, Monterey and at the Cherry Foundation, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel.

For further information, phone 624-7491.

Poets: Annual Poetry Shell contest entries are open until April 5

Poetry Shell, the magazine of verse of the Monterey Peninsula, has announced its annual spring poetry contest. Entries from local poets will be accepted until April 5.

Awards will be given in four categories: serious verse in memory of Richard L. Plunkett — $20, $10 and $5; light verse — $25, $10 and $5; teenagers 13 to 17 years of age — $10, $5 and $3; and similar prizes to juveniles 12 and under.

Contestants should not submit more than five unpublished poems in each category, preferrably not more than 25 lines each. Entries must have one poem with title per page, typed on 8x11 inch paper. No names or phone numbers are to appear on the entered poems.

Judging will be anonymous; therefore include a separate piece of paper with name, address, telephone number and the titles of all poems submitted. Teenagers and juveniles should include age.

Entries should be mailed to Lois Wilson, Contest Chairman, P.O. Box 31, Pacific Grove, CA 93953.

James Schevill will read his recent poetry works at MPC March 1

Award-winning and internationally-published poet James Schevill will present a special program of readings and performance-poems at Monterey Peninsula College on Monday, Mar. 1 at 8 p.m. in Room M-10.

Schevill has published 12 volumes of poetry, including Private Dooms and Public Destinations: Selected Poems 1945-1962, The Stalingrad Elegies, Violence and Glory: Poems, the Buddhist Car and Other Characters, The Mayan Poems, and Fire of Eyes: A Guatemalan Sequence. Many of his plays have been produced around the world. He has received a variety of awards for his work, including Rockefeller and Ford Foundation grants and a Guggenheim Fellowship for 1981-82.

The poetry readings will be accompanied by musician Margot Schevill, who has performed in concert and opera throughout the United States and Europe since 1959.

Admission is free. For more information, phone Bill Minor of the MPC English Department, 646-4115.

Photographs by masters go on the auction block

The Pacific Grove Art Center will present the first photography auction ever held on the Central California coast on Saturday, Feb. 27. A preview of the photographs to be auctioned is scheduled from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. today and Friday, Feb. 25-26 at the art center, 568 Lighthouse, Pacific Grove.

The photographs have been donated by many nationally known photographers and their collectors; included are many prints by local photographers.

Chris Grimes of The Collectors Gallery has curated the photographs which represent a broad range of work from the traditional landscape to contemporary and experimental images.

Proceeds from the auction will go toward renovation of the Photography Gallery and to help support photography at the art center.

The preview and reception for the photographers and donors is planned from 7-10 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 26. There will be a bidders' registration from 5-7 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 27. The auction will be that evening from 7-9 p.m. The public is welcome to the preview and auction at no charge.

Classes on foreign relations offered

The Monterey Institute of International Studies and the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula have joined together for the first time to present a specially designed series of mini-courses on international relations to Peninsula high school students. The series will be taught by faculty specialists from MIIS who will focus on three important areas of the world.

"In Defense of the Sacred Cow: A Westerner's Look at Indian Society will be taught by Dr. Glynn L. Wood. The mini-course will be an analysis of the village in Indian society with special attention to the significance of the cow in economic, cultural and social life. The course is scheduled March 5 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Dr. Stephen Garrett will present Resurgent Islam: Politicians and Muslems in the Middle East, a discussion of the importance of religion and politics in the Middle East on April 9 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The final course, Barbarians and Mandarins: U.S. Relations in the Far East, is an analysis of the myths and realities of American relations with China and Japan. Led by Dr. Linda Johnson, the date is May 7, from 7 to 9 p.m.

The mini-series will meet at the Monterey Institute. There will be a small registration fee covering the full series.

The series is open to all high school students; membership in the Lyceum is not necessary. Early registration is suggested.

For further information or to register, phone the Lyceum at 372-6098.

Salinas rodeo highlights announced

Highlights of the 1982 California Rodeo, July 15-18 in Salinas, have been announced. The rodeo is unique in featuring classic cowboy action in the areana plus a simultaneous show on the track.

Festivities begin Thursday, July 15 with the traditional Roundup Day Barbecue. A Western steak barbecue, cocktails, live music, door prizes, a center grandstand seat and parking privileges are included in the $17 cost.

Thursday will also be Family Day. Children will be admitted for $2 when accompanied by an adult holding an $8 seat; they will sit in a special Family Day section. The first 5,000 people wearing Levi jeans will receive a free Levi bandana at the gate. Other door prizes include a bicycle and a year's supply of soft drinks.

On Thursday and Friday senior citizens may purchase a center grandstand seat for $5.

A Western Art Show and California Historical Exhibition will be presented throughout the rodeo from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Salinas Community Center. The finest American Western artists will offer originals and prints for sale and exhibition. Memorabilia from the first rodeo in 1911 to the present will be on display.

Individual daily admission is $7, $8, $9 or $12. Season tickets may be purchased for $36.

For reservations write the California Rodeo, Inc. P.O. Box 1648, Salinas, CA 93902 or phone 1-757-2951.

THIS FIERY RED FERRARI two-seater was voted Best in the Show by the those attending the three-day car show presented by the American Tin Cannery Shopping Mall last weekend. Ferrari West and British Motors of Monterey displayed this model to an estimated crowd of six to eight thousand. A DeLorean from Bruce Canepa Motors of Santa Cruz won second place honors; third place was awarded to a Porsche 928 from MotorSports Ltd., Seaside.

Tickets are still available for prestigious U.S. Open Golf Tournament in Pebble Beach

Tickets are still available for the U.S. Open Golf Championship scheduled for June 14-20 at Pebble Beach.

United States Golf Association adjustments to the course were used during Crosby competition and included play on the narrowed fairways and the use of re-designed bunkers on 4 and 16. A thick stand of turf for the rough adjoining all of the fairways is now starting to grow. With the major projects on the Pebble Beach course completed, the next four months will be spent grooming the 120 acres and watching the grass grow.

The $90 season ticket package is still available. The ticket entitles the holder to the entire week of golf with one ticket for each day of the week, three practice round days, four tournament days and a play-off, if necessary. Each season ticket holder will receive a complimentary copy of the souvenir U.S. Open Book.

Availability of daily tickets will be known in early April.

For further information, write 1982 U.S. Open, Box 1982, Pebble Beach, CA 93953 or phone, 649-OPEN.

ON STAGE

The Monterey Peninsula College Players gather together a dragon, fairy queen, witches and wizards in Once Upon A Planet, a fantasy-adventure, written by local playwright Mike Alsup.

Performed in the round with elaborate costumes, sounds and lighting, the play tells the adventures of townspeople governed by a wizard's wicked sister.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 26, and Saturday, Feb. 27; and at 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 28 in the SRO Theatre, MPC, 980 Fremont, Monterey.

Tickets are $2 . For further information, phone 646-4063.

The Studio Theatre Restaurant stages the hilarious British comedy, Breath of Spring through Mar. 6. Peter Coke's play presents five well-bred, elderly Britishers who regain the enthusiasm and daring of youth when they plot to steal furs from the rich and give them to the poor.

Dinner is at 7 p.m. and the play begins at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. The dinner and performance are one hour earlier on Sunday.

The price for dinner and the show is $16 Thursday, Friday and Sunday and $16.50 on Saturday. Admission to the show only is $7.

The Studio Theatre Restaurant on Dolores near Ocean, Carmel. For reservations, phone 624-1661.

California's First Theater, brings the fun and good humor of melodrama to the stage with My Lady Darrell. The audience is encouraged to boo and hiss the villain and cheer the hero as he rescues the damsel in distress! This 19th century production is performed by the Troupers of the Gold Coast.

Showtime is 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday throughout March. Admission is $4 adults, $3 teens and, on Friday, $2 for subteens.

Tickets may be purchased at the First Theater, Scott and Pacific streets, Monterey, after 1 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday. For further information, phone 375-4916.

Staff Players Repertory Company, praised for their interpretations of plays by Moliere, stages another of his comedies, The Misanthrope. This 17th century French play tells the story of a man so caught up in his ideals that he cannot function in society.

The Misanthrope is presented at 8:30 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through March 14 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Santa Rita and Mountain View, Carmel.

Tickets are $5 general and $3 students and seniors. Seating is limited. For reservatrions phone 624-1531.

Fourth Street Playhouse presents the Neil Simon comedy, Barefoot in the Park, at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday through Feb. 27.

A newlywed couple's first days of setting up housekeeping make for some hilarious moments in this Broadway hit. The unexpected arrival of a harassing mother-in-law further adds a zany quality.

Tickets, at $3, are available at the Fourth Street Playhouse, Fourth St. and Fourth Ave., Fort Ord, the evening of the performance. For reservations, phone 242-6337.

The Wharf Theater stages Noel Coward's most famous comedy, Private Lives, at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 8 p.m. Sunday through Mar. 7. Romance and humor are intertwined in this story of marriage, divorce and marriage.

The fun begins when a couple, once married and now honeymooning with new spouses at the same hotel, meet accidentally. Their old passion surfaces and they elope. When their abandoned spouses confront them, a rip-roaring scene errupts!

The Wharf Theater is on Old Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey. Tickets are $6 and $8. For reservations, phone 372-2882.

Monterey Library will offer three free films

Three short films will be shown at 2 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25 at the Monterey Public Library, 625 Pacific, Monterey.

A young brother and sister run away to live in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in From the Mixed Up Files of Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler, which stars Ingrid Bergman as Mrs. Frankweiler. The adventurous youngsters set out to absorb everything about the museum. When they come upon a breathtaking statue, they take it upon themselves to solve the mystery of whether or not it was sculpted by Michelangelo.

The second film, Western Canada, explores the country of emerald lakes, snowcapped peaks, and rolling prairies. Baronial hotels, national parks, snowmobiling, white-water rafting, the Calgary stampede and old ways of the Tuktoyaktuk people are viewed in this look at our northern neighbor.

The development of the automobile and its effect on people's lives is the subject of the third short, The Moving Spirit.

The public is invited at no charge. For further information, phone 646-3930.

Cooking Club will demonstrate how to make teatime treats

Basic cooking techniques and how to make marvelous British teatime treats will be taught this week at The Cooks' Club at the Peppercorn restaurant, The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

An overview of cooking skills including how to select meat cuts, use spices, garnish dishes attractively, plan meals, buy and prepare fish will be taught from 5-8:30 p.m. today, Thursday, Feb. 25. The chef will also prepare Supremes de Volaille William, chicken breasts with mushroom and sherry sauce; Filets de Poisson en Papillate, baked fish in paper; stir-fried vegetables; risotto, rice pilaf with onions; and Surprise Cake, a delicious moist, light cake.

Dinner will be served at 8:30 p.m. The cost for the class, recipes, dinner and wine is $15. A guest may be invited for an additional $7.

British teatime treats — crumpets, shortbread and gingerbread — will be made in a free demonstration on Saturday, Feb. 27. The demonstration will be given from 10 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m.

Protect your dog from distemper

By JUDITH A. [illegible]

FOR MANY YEARS, distemper was known as the scourge of dogdom. Long before modern veterinary science had devised any method of protective immunization, dog owners struggle to avoid contact with this killer virus and, in instances where exposure induced the disease, labored mightily to combat it.

The name itself—distemper—probably indicates the confusion the disease created. Its symptoms are varied, all generally pointing to a very sick animal, and its treatment is complicated by a host of other illnesses that may attack the weakened distemper patient. Once a dog contracts distemper he may be prey to a frightening array of complications including pneumonia, kidney malfunctions, nervous disorders and heart problems. That is why treatment is so difficult and so often futile.

Before the advent of prophylactic immunization against distemper, dog owners depended largely upon homespun precautions and isolation of young puppies. Depending upon the individual dog owner, the dog's nose and paws might be smeared with some noxious substance in the hopes of warding off the disease (this before it was known to be an air-borne virus), and animals often were routinely dosed with laxative oils to "clean them out," and, hopefully, the distemper germ as well.

Today, thanks to the availability of safe, reliable vaccines against distemper (and its partners in crime, hepatitis, leptospirosis and parvo), there is no excuse for the continued existence of the disease, beyond human ignorance, neglect and carelessness.

One of the problems encountered with distemper inoculations is that years ago they were thought to produce permanent immunity to the disease. Even today, we hear talk of "permanent shots" once a puppy is past the age of eight or nine weeks, and people tend to believe that once the puppy receives these shots, he is safe for the rest of his life.

Modern techniques in determining immunity levels (called a nomograph) through examination of blood samples, inform us that these so-called permanent shots may confer immunity for as little as six months, and, in a few dogs, for as long as two or three years. In general, veterinarians accept the premise that the immunity lasts roughly a year, and recommend revaccination at yearly intervals.

THE CONFUSION as to permanent shots arises, no doubt, because of the existence and use of "temporary shots" including gamma globulin and distemper serum inoculations. These may be administered to young puppies at 10 to 14 day intervals to afford protection until the puppy is old enough to receive a regular series of inoculations (we refrain from saying permanent shots).

Normally, newborn and nursing puppies receive passive immunity to disease through their mother's milk, which contains antibodies for whatever diseases she herself is immune to. That is why it is so important for every puppy to receive the bitch's "first milk," or colostrum. It is in this first 24-hour production of milk that the antibodies are to be found.

Unfortunately, a good many bitches do not have sufficient antibodies to safeguard their puppies. For that reason—to protect the puppies—it is generally recommended that pregnant bitches be re-vaccinated routinely against the distemper, hepatitis and leptospirosis. Vaccination within the 63 days of pregnancy is almost foolproof protection against the diseases. When it is known that the bitch has a high immunity level, many people prefer to bypass the temporary or "puppy shots" and wait until the puppy is old enough to receive the adult inoculations.

Additionally, before a puppy can receive the adult vaccine, the vet must be certain he is no longer protected by the serum or the new vaccine won't work. Generally, vets advise waiting 14 or 15 days from the time of the last shot of serum. If the serum immunity lasts only 10 days, the dog can conceivably be unprotected against disease for almost a week.

Distemper exists all year 'round. The reason we believe it to be a springtime disease is that there are usually more puppies born in the spring—and consequently, more instances of distemper in unprotected, susceptible young animals.

DISTEMPER CAN BE transmitted in many ways: the virus can be discharged into the air through the breath, sneeze or cough of an infected dog; it can be passed in his urine or stool; it can even be carried (but not caught) by humans who visit from kennel to kennel. In addition, mature dogs can be distemper virus carriers, capable of transmitting the virus although they themselves exhibit no symptoms of the disease.

Veterinarians believe that distemper in domestic dogs could be virtually eliminated if every dog were inoculated annually against the disease. Adult inoculations can be given as early a six weeks of age, although generally they are given at eight weeks.

An important thing to remember is that elderly dogs—those over eight years of age—tend to lose their immunity to distemper rapidly. Fifty percent of the dogs over eight years lose their immunity within a year of inoculation. Therefore, it is extremely important for these dogs to receive annual "booster" shots.

Once your puppy has received a series of adult inoculations, you should keep record of the dates and plan to have him revaccinated in a year. Ask your vet to send you a reminder when the shot is due, but don't depend on being reminded. Treatment for distemper is protracted and costly and often leads to heartbreak. Prevention is the best cure.

NOTICE OF DEATH OF WARREN WILLIAM SPINDLER, also known as WARREN W. SPINDLER, WARREN SPINDLER AND OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE CASE NO. MP 7711

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate of: WARREN WILLIAM SPINDLER, WARREN W. SPINDLER, WARREN SPINDLER.

A petition has been filed by Margaret R. Stone, Attorney at Law in the Superior Court of Monterey County requesting that Margaret R. Stone, Attorney at Law be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act.

A hearing on the petition will be held on March 19, 1982 at 9:30 a.m. in the County Courthouse, Monterey, California.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court or present it to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 700 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire prior to four months from the date of the hearing noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file a request with the court to receive special notice of the filing of the inventory of estate assets and of the petitions, accounts and reports described in section 1200 of the California Probate Code.

LUMBER CAME FROM AUSTRALIA

Lumber for the Gordon House, on Pierce St. along Monterey's Path of History, was milled in Australia, shipped to England and re-shipped around the Horn to Monterey. Built in 1849-50, it was one of the first frame houses in Calfornia. Its owner did not trust adobe as a building material, but did follow the simple lines of existing houses made of the clay bricks.

CARMEL VALLEY

Vast southerly view of the Santa Lucia Mountains is framed by window walls in a contemporary redwood home and a guest house set amid oaks, pines, fruit trees and low-care landscaping on a 1.4-acre site in the privacy of La Rancheria.

Graced by an adobe fireplace, the carpeted living room has a built-in bar, paneled walls and a beamed, wood ceiling.

This pleasant dining ell at one end of the living room that overlooks both an entrance atrium and the mountains.

The atrium, featuring a fountain, also planting and pebble mosaic paving, is framed by the sliding glass doors in the wallpapered, carpeted and beamed-ceiling family room that extends from the kitchen with ample cabinets and counters.

Folding panels screening a window wall opening to a deck, also a beamed wood ceiling, paneling and carpeting enrich the master suite. Similar ceilings, walls and flooring are in the other bedroom and adjacent study, or third bedroom. A second bathroom, laundry facility and a garage complete the main dwelling. The guest house encompasses living room with fireplace, kitchen, bedroom, bath and carport. Price of this pleasing property in a prime location is $340,000.

Remember When?

65 years ago

From the "Carmel Pine Cone," Feb. 22, 1917

WOULDN'T HAVE MISSED IT FOR ANYTHING

From the time the first merrymakers entered the hall until the musicians rendered the "Home Sweet Home" waltz, there was not an uninteresting interval at the annual masquerade ball of the Manzanita Club, last Saturday night.

There were all sorts of costumes — grotesque, cheap, novel, expensive — all adding to the color and gaiety of the occasion. A touch of the patriotic was given the affair by the display of a portraint of General Washington, and masquers costumed as "Miss Columbia" and "Uncle Sam."

And such excellent music. Old folks who thought they had forgotten how to trip the light fantastic, and youngsters who had never danced before, couldn't help stepping to the music, so good was the time. Kelsey and his orchestra certainly "know how."

The only complaint heard since the affair took place is to the effect that when people have such a fine time, it is not pleasant to have to wait a whole year for a repetition.

The prize winners were: Mrs. H.P. Larouette as an old-time Negro mammy, and Mr. R.W. Hicks as a loud, over-dressed Coon.

CARMEL DAIRY TO OCCUPY NEW OCEAN AVENUE BUILDING

Carmel's business district is to have a handsome new store building shortly when the plumbing establishment of Thomas R. Reardon at Ocean Avenue and Mission Street gives place to a modern two-story structure to be occupied by the Carmel Dairy.

The building to be erected by T.B. Reardon will be on the northwest corner of the streets, and will have its side toward the beautified Devendorf Park, overlooking it with wide, arched windows.

The second story will have either offices or apartments. The Carmel Dairy will occupy all the ground floor and a mezzanine with its business of milk distribution and pasteurization, its lunch room and soda water counters.

KING HONORED

Mary K. King, a Carmel Valley resident, was among the volunteers honored at the annual awards dinner and business meeting of Monterey Bay Girl Scout Council on February 17, 1977.

Mrs. King, wife and mother of three sons, is a Girl Scout of many years, having served the local council as troop leader and program consultant. She is presently a member of the council's program committee and is working with Cadette Girl Scouts to carry out a weekend of Cadette activities and skills at the Council camp, Cawatre.

Local students named to honor roll at Santa Catalina School

Nine Carmel-area residents have been named to the honor roll at Santa Catalina School.

Carmel residents earning a B average or better include: Stephanie Burns, Isabelle Janko, Julia Janko, Isabel Haley, Barbara Rowe and Daniel Staiano.

Carmel Valley residents earning at least a B average include: Tara Davey, Gretha Honsvald and Susan Lockwood.

Pebble Beach residents Carlita Miraco and Theresa Puleo earned special "Gold Cord" honors for their high averages. Miss Miraco finished with the highest grade point avarage in the senior class.

Other Pebble Beach residents on the honor roll include: Christine Balestrieri, Melody Bender, Krysia Belza, Sara von Schwind and Seaneen Scott.

MPC gallery will screen 1947 film

The Monterey Peninsula College Film Gallery will screen the 1947 film, The Unconquered, on Friday, Feb. 26 at 8 p.m. in the MPC Music Hall, 980 Fremont St., Monterey.

The color film features Gary Cooper, Paulette Goddard, Howard da Silva, and Boris Karloff. The Cecil B. DeMille epic is the story of underhanded attempts to prevent extension of the frontier past the Alleghenies in colonial America.

General admission is $2. For more information, contact MPC Community Services, 646-4051.

MPC needs volunteers for survey

The Supportive Services Department of Monterey Peninsula College is in need of volunteers to survey facilities on the Peninsula to determine their accessibility to handicapped individuals. The first meeting of volunteers is scheduled at MPC on Monday, March 8 at 10 a.m.

The object of the proposed compilation of data will be an "Accessibility Guide to the Monterey Peninsula," which will list motels, hotels, restaurants, shopping centers, public buildings, etc. which have been made accessible to disabled persons who may visit or live in the area.

Anyone interested in volunteering the time and effort toward this project should contact Shaaron Kaplan, Director of MPC Supportive Services, 646-4070.
